OLD SOLDIERS FIGHT FIRE AT BRISTOL HOME

BRISTOL, R. I., Jan. 31.—Fire that threatened to destroy the Soldiers' Home, located on the top of a high bluff two miles from Bristol Centre, at 6:30 a. m. to-day, burned two of the several buildings constituting the home to the ground.

Complete destruction of the home was prevented by the veterans themselves.

SOLDIERS ASSISTED FROM ROOM.

Because of the strong wind that was blowing, the fire department from Bristol, which was soon on the ground, had a hard fight to save the other structures. There are about 170 old soldiers in the home, and many of them rushed into the breach and worked to save the buildings.

Soldiers Assisted from Room.

The two structures destroyed were the domestic building, two and a half stories, and one of the five pavilions in which the men slept. Most of the men had already arisen, but some of them had to be assisted from their rooms. No one was injured.

There are twelve or fifteen buildings in all, and for a time it looked as though they were doomed. Captain Benjamin L. Hall, who is in charge of the home, discovered the fire soon after it started.

The fire originated in the kitchen. It was caused by some fat burning over while breakfast was being prepared.

The blaze swept through the frame structure with great rapidity. The wind whipped the flame, carrying it in the direction of the other buildings. Captain Hall sent in a hurry call for help and the fire department went out to the home on the jump.

By this time the blaze had reached the first pavilion. Water was poured into the blazing structures in great streams, and it was a nip-and-tuck fight for half an hour.

Veterans in Tears.

The old soldiers stood about, many of them unable to help, with tears in their eyes. Captain Hall quieted them and assured them that they would be able to save most of the buildings. But the greatest excitement prevailed.

Finally the fire fighters got the blaze under control, and in a short time they had it reduced to smouldering embers. Then the aged veterans were taken into other buildings and were allowed to eat their breakfasts.

There were thirty-one men in the pavilion that was burned. They got out so quickly that they were unable to save any of their belongings. This worried some of the older ones very much. But Captain Hall told them it would all be made up to them.

There were five or six persons at work in the kitchen when the fire started. They tried ineffectually to stop it, but were unable to do so. Soon then scorched their hands in their efforts to put out the flames.

Loss May Be $10,000.

In what was known as the domestic building, which was burned, were the kitchen, the dining room, the library, the smoking room and a large store room. Many of the stores were destroyed.

It was estimated that the loss would reach between $8,000 and $10,000.

The Rhode Island Soldiers' Home was established here in 1880 and 1891, under the provisions of Chapter 111 of the Public Laws, passed April 23, 1880, to provide "a home for those men who served in the army or navy of the United States in the War of the Rebellion, and were honorably discharged therefrom, who, by reason of wounds, disease, old age, or other infirmities, are unable to earn their living, and have no adequate means of support."

3 VESSELS IN HARBOR CRASH

For the third time in as many days, the British steamer Wearside was driven by the wind from its moorings in the harbor off East Boston, to-day. The big freighter rammed the wooden barge Piora and later collided with the steel barge Bombay. All three of the craft were badly damaged.

The Wearside is so wide that when she arrived with a cargo of sugar, it was found she could not pass through the Congress street bridge to the refinery. Since most the cargo has been removed by lighters, the hull has risen clear from the water, offering a broad face to the wind. The freighter dragged its anchor, being blown a distance of 200 yards, when it smashed in the stern of the barge and carried away the latter's anchor. The barge also sprang leaking badly. Further down the harbor, the Bombay was struck, its bow being bent in. The bow of the Wearside was also damaged.

It was reported that the owners of the two craft injured to-day would libel the Wearside in a suit for damages before she leaves Boston.

BOY CHIEF WITNESS AT MURDER TRIAL

The trial of Robert T. Jeffress, charged with killing Special Officer Edward Shackford, on October 12, in a dance hall at No. 18 Albion street, South End, was begun to-day before Judge Denney and a jury in the Superior Criminal Court. A boy named Mattie Foster, living at No. 23 Block street, Cambridge, told of the shooting. He said Jeffress attempted to kiss his sister at the dance. Shackford interfered with him. Then Jeffress pulled out a revolver and covered Shackford, who backed out of the room. "Later in the evening," said the boy, "Shackford was in the kitchen and pulled out his revolver and shot into the floor. Jeffress was in the corridor. He heard the shots and saw Shackford. Then he drew his gun and shot through the door. Shackford dropped. I helped him to a sofa. He moved where he was shot, and gave me his gun to take to his home."

LINER IN PORT AFTER BATTLE WITH GALES

The Indra Line steamer Indrapura arrived in port to-day from Chinese-Japanese ports, having been fifteen hours in making the last sixty-five miles of her journey. Captain Mansfield of the Indrapura declared that he had sailed Summer seas up to the time when he was 1,600 miles east of Boston. From that time on he encountered westerly gales. The Indrapura was delayed two days during the last 1,000 miles of her journey. Yesterday morning at 10 o'clock she was sixty-five miles east of Boston Light. At 1 a. m. to-day she anchored off the light. The Indrapura was a mail ship as she steamed up the harbor to-day. Her wireless was frozen. The crew, mostly Chinese, clattered about the deck half clad and half frozen.

FLEE FROM FLAMES IN NIGHT CLOTHES

BROCKTON, Jan. 31.—Dressed in their night clothing, the occupants of a frame dwelling at No. 95 Hollis street rushed from the house to-day to escape a fire that started while they were asleep.

Mrs. Gabriel Haris grabbed her seven months old baby, and rushing into the street, ran seventy-five yards to the home of a neighbor with the child. Her bare feet were badly bruised. She hurried back to the house to see what had happened to her other four children and learned that her husband had got them out with the greatest difficulty. Other tenants had also escaped. The stable was burned to the ground.

GEORGE LEE PEABODY IS GROWING WORSE

BALTIMORE, Jan. 31.—The condition of George Lee Peabody, the Boston millionaire, who underwent two operations at Johns Hopkins Hospital here, is critical to-day. The physicians at the hospital announced to-day that Mr. Peabody had spent an uncomfortable and restless night. Several visits from his fiancee, Miss Dawson, who is visiting in Washington, brightened the patient considerably, but his death is not unexpected.

DINNER TO MAGENIS AND DR. SCANNELL

The friends of James P. Magenis and Dr. David D. Scannell, retiring members of the School Committee, are preparing to give them a farewell dinner. The Public School Association is perfecting plans for the dinner, which will probably take place some time during the middle of February. Charles Foss, secretary, has charge of the arrangements.

HUNDREDS HOMELESS IN FLOOD

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 31.—Hundreds of residents of the lowlands about Pittsburg were taken from their homes to higher grounds on rafts or rowboats to escape the ravages of the flood that has inundated the valley towns. Immense damage has been done by the waters along the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio Rivers but the weather bureau stated that the crest had been reached shortly after 3 a. m. to-day, when the water reached a height of 26 feet or four feet above the danger line.

The cold wave that arrived yesterday averted one of the most disastrous floods on record.

Many of the smaller streams are frozen over. All points of danger reached on the Monongahela River stated that the river was slowly falling. On the north side the usual flood precautions were taken by the police and families living in the flood district moved into the upper floors of their homes.

Police Boats in Patrol.

Exposition Park was flooded, and at the same time the water reached the Pittsburg and Western tracks of the R. & O. Railroad, necessitating the diversion of traffic. Policemen in boats are patrolling the flooded section and the officers will take care of those who are marooned in the upper floors of their homes, seeing that they are supplied with provisions and other necessities.

Along the Monongahela wharf and on the opposite bank of the river, tow boats with a full head of steam up lay close to the shore ready to render any assistance should any of the barges or coal boats be torn loose from their moorings. The wind prevailing, together with the powerful current in the Monongahela, necessitated the use of every possible precaution to prevent any of the river craft from breaking their lashings and drifting down the river to be destroyed by colliding with some bridge pier or other boats. River traffic is almost completely tied up and business life as a result of closing down of factories and other industrial plants.

Houses Swept Away.

Dispatches from Wheeling, W. Va., say that damage estimated at over $1,000,000 has already been caused by the flood in the Ohio Valley, and the water was still rising to-day. The crest is expected to reach thirty-seven feet. Part of the business section of Wheeling is under water; merchants are moving their goods to the upper floors.

Railroad traffic is badly hampered, trestles have been swept away and hundreds have been destroyed. The situation at Cambellons are especially bad at Morgantown and Clarksburg, W. Va. At some points train service is entirely discontinued. Many houses have been swept away, but so far as known no lives have been lost.

52,452 VOTERS WHO STAYED AT HOME

City Affairs, the organ of the Good Government Association, has been analyzing the vote in the city election, especially in relation to the "stay-at-house" and "bullet" voters and fixes the percentage of registered voters who did not go to the polls at 47 per cent., or 52,452 of the 110,223 on the lists. The analysis shows that the highest percentage of "stay-at-home" was in the Republican wards, the figures showing that 2,744 of the 4,957 enrolled in Ward 25 did not take the trouble to vote. The highest percentage in any of the Democratic wards was 53, "Bulley" votes constituted 11 per cent. of the whole number cast at the city election, according to the analysis.

SCHOONER WRECKED AND ALL CREW LOST

DOVER, Eng., Jan. 31.—A tempest swept the English Channel and the Strait of Dover to-day, leaving death and ruin in its wake. The steamship Dandy Hall, inbound to Harwich from French ports, went ashore on Goodwin sands and all her crew were drowned, save the captain who saved by life savers after a battle with the raging waters.

The Dutch schooner Icemarck crashed ashore upon the Goodwin sands in the storm, but her crews of seven were rescued. The craft broke up.

WOODMAN UNIVERSAL CARBON CO. RECEIVER

Judge Dodge in the United States District Court to-day appointed Arthur S. Woodman receiver for the Universal Carbon Co., company, a $1,000,000 corporation, with offices at No. 6 Beacon street, and a factory at Ashland. His bond was fixed at $10,000. Creditors of the company had filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy alleging that an act of bankruptcy had been committed by the placing of a $25,000 mortgage upon the property to Robert P. Lyon of Hartford, Ct., thereby preferring him over the other creditors. Walter A. Webster is petitioner.

OPERATE UPON CAMBRIDGE PASTOR

Rev. Henry Hallam Saunderson, pastor of the Austin Street Unitarian Church of Cambridge, is at the Chester Hospital to-day recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

Women Giving Points on the Hatpin Bill

At the left, Mrs. Mary Louise Goodhue of Cambridge, who spoke for the bill, and Miss Henrietta Kahn, who appeared for the measure.

HATPIN BILLS HAVE HEARING

Two hat pin bills came up for a hearing before the Committee on Legal Affairs at the State House to-day.

The bill accompanying the petition of James A. Hart was entitled "Relative to the wearing of hat pins and other dangerous articles," thereby putting the hat pin in the same class with airships, toy pistols, pumsale acid, the Dudley street terminal and a typhoid fever germ.

The other bill accompanying the petition of Mary Louise Goodhue was merely "for legislation regulating the length of hat pins."

Newton Causes a Laugh.

Representative Ellis Newton of South Boston favored the bills and created a good deal of merriment when he spoke. He prefaced his remarks on the bill by stating that he had worked in a Boston department store for several months just to see what conditions women had to work under.

When he got down to hat pins "Bill" waded right in. He said: "It doesn't make any difference whether it's a "ding-dong" like the chums girls wear or a "pinky-pink-poo," or a "Sarah Bernhardt," or a "Vesta Tilley," little nuts or big nuts, the pins are the same length.

"You don't have to take a trip to Europe to find out either. Just take a car to South Boston any night and you'll find out that long hat pins are in any fashionable car going toward South Boston."

Menace to the Public.

Lawyer Wood, of No. 41 Tremont street, spoke for the bills. He declared that the projecting hat pins were a menace to the public. He said:

"While for one of the acts of many have decreased the length of pins never decreases. You're liable to get one in the eye or your ear especially in the Elevated cars where the people are packed in like sardines. I can't see which of the bills passes if some protection is provided for. I'd be satisfied if they got a work on the end of the hat pin."

Mr. Wood then took two hatpins from a lady friend that had brought with him. He said he got them in a department store yesterday, marked down from $1 to 49 cents. They were fifteen inches long. He left them with the committee as an exhibit.

Jabbed in the Eye.

Representative James A. Hart, who is father of one of the two bills, told of an instance when a conductor was jabbed in the eye with a hatpin when a car stopped suddenly and a woman fell back against him.

Other instances when men were injured on street cars by hatpins were told. Mrs. Goodhue of Cambridge was the last speaker. In response to a question from a member of the committee she said that it didn't make so much difference how much hair a woman had. She did how a hatpin of her own but had scratched the nose of a gentleman.

Provisions of the Bills.

The Hart petition, which declares hat pins dangerous, puts half an inch as the limit of exposure, and the other one sets a quarter of an inch as the safety point. The provision of the Hart bill are as follows:

No person while in the public streets, highways or other public places of this Commonwealth, or while riding on any railway, electric, elevated or steam railway car within this Commonwealth, or in any passenger elevator in any building in this Commonwealth, shall wear any hat pin unless that the exposed point thereof will protrude more than one-half inch beyond the crown of the hat in, upon or through which such hat pin is worn.

Any person violating any provision of this act shall be punished by a fine not more than twenty dollars for each offence.

The other bill proposed declares:

It shall be unlawful for any person to wear in any place a hat pin which shall project from the crown of a hat more than one-quarter of an inch.

Whoever violates any provision of this act shall for each offence be punished by a fine not exceeding $100 or by imprisonment in the House of Correction for a term not exceeding one month or by both such fine and imprisonment.

A number of women crowded the room at the hour the hearing was scheduled to begin.

BROKER DAVIE HAD $80,000

Robert E. Davie, the young broker that was accused of a $100,000 stock swindle, who was at first believed to have little if any money when he died, took about $80,000 worth of securities with him.

This information is given out to-day by Receiver Isidor Fox, who has been in charge of Davie's business since he left. Mr. Fox is certain that Davie had $80,000 worth of bonds in the Kansas City, Mexico & Oriental railway, purchased by him since Spring.

The bonds carry with them 3200 shares of stock of the railroad and coming stock as a bonus. The United States & Mexico Trust Company of New York has notified Fox that practically all the stock given as a bonus has been transferred on the books of the company.

There is no trace of the bonds. They are known to have been in Davie's possession as late as August. Forty thousand dollars worth of the bonds bore the English stamp. Davie's friends say he disposed of the bonds in London Exchange. The entire lot is expected there for cash in either England or Mexico. Mr. Fox believes that the fact that they are negotiable in either country may lead to a conclusion as to where Davie fled.

WIFE SLAYER GRANTED LIFE STAY BY COURT

A writ of error in the Chester W. Jordan case was issued to-day and is on file in the East Cambridge court. This acts as a supersedeas, and Jordan will not be electrocuted until the case is settled by the Supreme Court of the United States.

The writ of error was asked for by Jordan's attorneys on the ground that they were deprived of their rights under the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

APPLICATION FOR WRIT OF ERROR.

On the motion for a new trial before Justice Sisson and Hall, Jordan's attorneys contended that unless they could find beyond a reasonable doubt that Jordan was sane, when the court should grant as a matter of law a new trial. Otherwise Jordan would be denied his privileges under the fourteenth amendment.

Apply for Writ.

Counsel for Jordan say that the court did not find beyond a reasonable doubt that Jordan was sane, and yet refused Jordan a new trial.

General Charles W. Bartlett and Arthur T. Smith, attorneys for Jordan, then applied to Chief Justice Aiken for a writ of error signed by him and indorsed by the clerk of the United States circuit court. This writ orders the clerks of the Superior Court, where judgment was rendered against Jordan, in the name of the President of the United States, to transmit on or before February 25 of the current year, the record in the Jordan case to the Supreme Court of the United States at Washington.

The United States Supreme Court will then examine the record to see if the contentions of Jordan's attorneys are correct. If they are, then the judgment of the Massachusetts courts will be reversed.

Sheriff is Notified.

Sheriff Fairbairn and Warden Billings have, as a matter of course, been notified of the issuing of the writ of error, so that Jordan's life is spared until the matter has been examined and passed upon by the highest tribunal in the land.

Jordan is now in the East Cambridge jail, where he will remain until his case has been finally acted upon by the United States Supreme Court. He has been confined nearly two years, ever since the crime was committed.

CUMMINGS DECLINES POSITION ON BENCH

John W. Cummings of Fall River to-day notified Governor Foss that he "declines with thanks" the Governor's offer that he take the place on the Superior Court bench made vacant by the death of Judge Daniel W. Bond.

Mr. Cummings's reasons are purely personal. He has a very large law practice in Fall River and desires to continue his active practice.

Mr. Cummings was offered the appointment in a letter sent to him Saturday night by Governor Foss. It was entirely unsolicited by Mr. Cummings. Governor Foss took his name from a list of sixty prominent lawyers in the State whose names have been suggested. There are two vacant places on the Superior Bench one caused by the death of Judge Bond and the other by the resignation of Judge Robert O. Harris, now Congressman.

LINEMAN ON FIRE AT TOP OF POLE

The sight of a man at the top of a telegraph pole in Harvard square with his clothes afire, created great excitement in that part of Cambridge to-day. The man was Charles Rent, a lineman, of No. 8 Watertown. He was able to descend the pole unaided. When on the ground it was found that he had been severely burned. He was taken to the Cambridge hospital.

Rent is a linesman for the New England Telephone Company. While at the top of the pole a wire which he was handling became crossed. A flash followed and a box of matches in Rent's pocket became ignited. In a few minutes the flames began to take up and he got down from the pole. When he reached the street his coat and trousers were smoking. A passerby went to his aid.

HOLD SUSPECT AS BOSTON HOTEL MAN

The Boston police to-day received word that a man believed to be George C. Drula, a former bookkeeper at the Hotel Believue and wanted here for forgery, is under arrest in Rochester, N. Y. The prisoner denies that he is Drula and says he is George L. Harris. On June 26 Drula, then employed by the Hotel Believue, was given a check for $25 on the Lincoln Trust Company in New York as part payment for his services. He is charged with having raised the check to $2500, depositing it to his personal account and several days later drawing out $2,500. Officers will leave here for Rochester to identify the prisoner.

WOMAN BURNED IN KITCHEN FIRE

Fire which started in the third story of the three-story wooden building No. 98 Bilber street, South Boston, terribly burned Mrs. John Lane, wife of Engineer Lane at the city hospital, where, notwithstanding her terrible burns, the doctors say that she has a chance for recovery.

Mrs. Lane reached up to a mantelpiece over a hot stove, and in doing so caught her sleeve in a lamp full of kerosene, upsetting the lamp on to the red hot stove. The lamp exploded and set fire to the woman's dress. She ran screaming into a room occupied by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Gardies Gardies, who was sleeping. Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Mahoney went to her aid. Mahoney's hands being badly burned.

Dr. George Gavin found that the woman's left arm had been crushed completely off, and her head was severely burned. Mrs. Gardies displayed wonderful courage and fortitude during her terrible suffering. After the injured one got to the hospital, later the suffering became too great and she clutched at her head and was taken to the city hospital in an ambulance.

WIRELESS PICKS UP MYSTERIOUS MESSAGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The following message was picked up to-day from the air by an amateur wireless operator in Brooklyn, while it was being transmitted from a point in the ocean. It was sent to the operator by another amateur operator, who announced that he would present an amendment which would provide that the government would not incur any financial responsibility by the enterprise.

Representative Rucker of Colorado and Representative Foss spoke for San Francisco. Senator of New York closed the San Francisco end. He made a strong impression. Representative Rodenberg of Illinois opened the debate for New Orleans. He was greeted with solid applause by the berents of the Crescent City.

COLLIER ICE COATED.

The Dominion Coal Company collier Ocean arrived in port to-day a day and a half overdue from Louisburg, C. B., making a two-day trip, owing to heavy weather, coated with ice.

WOMAN PASTOR SAYS DRESS WRECKS HOMES

BROCKTON, Jan. 31.—The Rev. Myra C. Hoyt, pastor of the Wales Avenue Free Baptist Church, says the love for dress has wrecked more homes than rum. "Dress in our cities has wrecked as many homes as passion for drink," says the Rev. Mrs. Hoyt. "Many a wife with poor clothes, the poor butterfly of fashion, is driving much of her husband's income into the saloon. Women marry a man for a home and he marries a fool of a woman. Make the divorce laws sure that they can do what is best for them and there will not be so many divorces."

AMERICAN WOMAN LEAPS FROM LINER

TOKIO, Jan. 31.—Miss Alice Darijee of Newark, N. J., who arrived in China committed suicide by leaping overboard from the Pacific Mail steamship Manchuria on Friday, when the vessel was steaming between Shanghai and Nagasaki. Miss Darijee was on her way to her home in America on furlough. She had suffered a nervous breakdown due to excessive work and study.

SECOND PARLIAMENT IS OPENED TO-DAY

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The second parliament of King George assembled to-day with little ceremony, the spectacular function being reserved for next Monday, when the King and Queen will open the proceedings in state. Mr. Lowther was re-elected Speaker.

SAN FRANCISCO WINS IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The House of Representatives to-day voted to give San Francisco the Panama exposition and overturned the action of the Committee on Rules, which had decided for New Orleans. The vote was San Francisco, 188; New Orleans, 150; Milwaukee, Wis., 1; Washington, D. C., 1.

Representative Dalzell of Pennsylvania reported to-day the rule for the consideration of the exposition putting the selection of the city to which it shall be held directly up to the House. Representative Fassett of New York declared the 20th century was notable for two events, the Panama canal and the rebuilding of San Francisco, and made a strong appeal for the Golden Gate metropolis.

Representative Gardner of Massachusetts favored Representative Fassett. He opposed New Orleans because, he said, the government would have to put up the money for an exhibit. Representative Gardner was followed by Representative Kelliher of Massachusetts and Representative Pavey of New York, who made brief arguments for San Francisco. They were followed by Representative Steenerson of Pennsylvania and Tawney of Minnesota, who declared in favor of the Western metropolis. Representative Sulzer announced that he would present an amendment which would provide that the government would not incur any financial responsibility by the enterprise.

Representative Rucker of Colorado and Representative Foss spoke for San Francisco. Senator of New York closed the San Francisco end. He made a strong impression. Representative Rodenberg of Illinois opened the debate for New Orleans. He was greeted with solid applause by the berents of the Crescent City.

MAINE PULP MEN FOR RECIPROCITY

WATERVILLE, Me., Jan. 31.—While Senator Hale is devoting his last days in the Senate to flaying President Taft's plea for reciprocity with Canada and pointing out the disasters he says will follow the pulp and paper industries of this State should the agreement with the Dominion be ratified, Maine paper and pulp men are for the measure. Apparently Senator Hale is misrepresenting their position.

"I have not heard anything from our company in regard to the matter, but I should think it would be a good thing," said W. H. Stubbs, superintendent of the Hollingsworth & Whitney paper mill at Winslow, when shown a dispatch telling that Maine manufacturers of newspaper will do their best to defeat the proposed reciprocity pact.

"You do not agree with the other Maine paper mill in their opposition to reciprocity, then?" he was asked.

"Why, I have not made any very deep study of the question, but from the way I understand it, reciprocity would be a good thing for us," said Mr. Stubbs.

The local mill of the Hollingsworth & Whitney Company manufactures wrapping paper mostly, although it is equipped to furnish other kinds and qualities.

M. L. Keyes of the Keyes Fibre Company, Waterville and Fairfield, manufacturers of pulp in plates, was in favor of reciprocity.

"I do not see why it is not a good thing to be a great deal," he said, "We will get our pulp cheaper and this will enable us to maintain a safer margin of profit. I will be glad to go into all the fine points of the question, and as I understand the proposition it would be a great help to us."

SENATOR HAMILTON IS SERIOUSLY ILL

BIDDEFORD, Me., Jan. 31.—Following an attack of indigestion, Senator Benjamin F. Hamilton is at his home suffering from what is believed to be a severe cold, but is very feeble. His physician says his condition is serious, and it is not believed he will be able to attend the closing sessions of the Legislature this year.

MRS. FOSS HONORED IN NATION'S CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Mrs. Eugene Noble Foss, wife of Governor Foss, was the recipient of a brilliant reception given by the state today. Mrs. Georgia E. Foss,

This Prescription Knocks Rheumatism

The only logical treatment for rheumatism is through the blood. A prescription which has recently proved wonderfully effective in human work in the following: Any druggist has the ingredients or will quickly get them for you. Any one can mix them. "One ounce compound syrup of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toric compound; half pint fine whiskey. These to be mixed and used in tablespoon doses before each meal and at bedtime. This cured thousands here last Winter. It relieves immediately.

Not only will it eradicate rheumatism quickly, but it is a splendid system builder and soon restores appetite and vitality. Many persons troubled with rheumatism would not be without a bottle of the mixture on hand at all times.

GLOUCESTER FISH PROTEST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—A large delegation of Gloucester citizens, headed by Mayor Isaac Patch, arrived here today and called on Representative Gardner of Massachusetts, who is one of the leaders against the proposed Canadian reciprocity agreement. Representative Gardner arranged for members of the delegation to be heard in opposition to the treaty on reciprocity before the House Ways and Means Committee on Thursday.

This is the first organized protest to be heard against the provisions of the agreement, and the Gloucester men declare that the removal of the present duty of three-quarters of a cent a pound on fresh or salted fish would be the death blow of the fish packing industry of that city. It was asserted that the Canadian packers, with cheaper vessels and labor, would drive the Gloucester packers to the wall once the duty was taken off.

Mayor Patch There.

Chairman Currell, of the Gloucester Board of Trade, headed the delegation, which was composed of Mayor Patch, Captain Charles H. Harty, Captain George Pearson, Benjamin A. Smith, Frank C. Pearce, Orlando Mason, Fred L. Dennis, E. Archer Bradley, William F. Moore, William J. Brown, Fred Bradley, Ernest Smith, Captain I. E. Splann, Representative Henry M. Atwood and Arthur L. Millett of Gloucester; Freeman H. Hosmer of San Francisco, and Thomas M. Nicholson of Rockport, Mass.

Mr. Currell said the committee would have been a much larger body if word of the hearing had been received earlier. He said he received a letter from Congressman Gardner yesterday informing him of the hearing today and that he hastily organized a delegation which barely had time to rush to Boston and catch the Federal Express for this city.

Lost Other Industries.

Members of the delegation said Gloucester had lost the fresh fish industry to Boston and that the halibut trade, once an important industry in Gloucester, has gone to Portland, Me. They admitted these losses to Gloucester were purely the result of natural or business conditions, but declared that the salt fish industry now in Gloucester's chief business asset and that free fish from Canada would mean the complete ruin of the city. Lawrence Nova Scotia, was now Gloucester's chief rival in the cured fish line, they said, and with the duty taken off salted and packed there, the American market would be flooded with Canadian fish. They could not compete with the Nova Scotia product, they said, because of the difference in wages and the cheapening and vessels to catch the cod, haddock, and pollock, which constitute the raw material for the packing industry.

FIRE HORSE RUNS DOWN BOSTON MAN

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight London Time

Brilliant Court Fete Given by the Rockhills.

ST. PETERSBURG, The American Ambassador, W. W. Rockhill, and Mrs. Rockhill gave a brilliant reception last night on the occasion of the Ambassador's presentation of his letters of credence to the Emperor. Russia is the only country where this ancient form of reception, technically called Blackhousen, persists. The invitations numbered 3,500, sent out exclusively to those entitled to admission to the court, and those were present, including all the members of the Cabinet, the entire suite of the Emperor and Empress and an unprecedented number of the oldest families in Russia, who rarely send outside of the court for the first time since the revolution. The embassies came in a body. The Ambassador and his staff wore court dress.

Lower Cable Tolls Coming.

LONDON—Herbert Samuel, the Postmaster-General, in a speech at a journalistic gathering last night, said he would be exceedingly disappointed if the terms of the Pacific cable conference did not result in considerable and acceptable reduction in cable rates. Rates, said Mr. Samuel, were not now, so far as the cable companies used by business men, unduly heavy, owing to the rapid growth of code telegraphy, but it was different with plain word telegrams and press telegrams. He hopes for cut rates in the near future.

Crown Prince Returns.

BERLIN—On account of the plague in Manchuria and China, Crown Prince Eitel Frederick of Germany will not visit the American possessions on his trip around the world. Word was received from the Crown Prince at Calcutta today that he is cutting his Eastern travels short and will return to Germany from India. When he left Germany some months ago it was reported that he would return via the United States, but this plan has since been abandoned.

"Eden" Will Bloom Again.

LONDON—Sir John Jackson has obtained the contract for the construction of the first dam in the irrigation works designed by Sir William Willcox for the Turkish government, with the object of again making an Eden of Mesopotamia. Willcox, who has been engaged in surveying the land between the Tigris and the Euphrates, predicts that this arid waste, showing traces of ancient irrigation canals, will again blossom.

Yankee Peace Club in Japan.

TOKIO—Americans resident in Japan have organized a peace society. A big meeting was held in the hall at Yokohama, in which leading business men participated, and much enthusiasm was displayed. Two honored names were enrolled, those of the American Ambassador, Thomas J. O'Brien, and resolutions were adopted denouncing the war talk.

Students Go on Strike.

CRACOW, Austria—The students of the university here and in Lemberg have left their classes on a strike as a protest against the appointment recently of a German professor at the Cracow University. The students have prevented lectures from being held, and have been indulging in riotous conduct.

Austria Talks Disarmament.

BUDAPEST—In the Delegations, replying to a question concerning President Taft's action in the disarmament question, Count von Aehrenthal, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, intimated that he was exchanging views with the other Powers on this subject.

Schofield to Lecture in French.

PARIS—The faculty of the Sorbonne is prepared to announce a series of lectures in French by William Henry Schofield, professor of comparative literature at Harvard University, on the subject "Chivalry in English Literature."

Socialist Leader Dies.

BERLIN—Paul Singer, the Socialist leader in the Reichstag, died today of pneumonia. Herr Singer was an orator of force and a brilliant parliamentarian.

BOSTON AMERICAN $ 35,000 PRIZE COUPON

NAME

VALUELESS AFTER FEBRUARY 14, 1911.

Enrollment Ballot—Good for 800 Votes

NAME .....

STREET AND NO. .....

CITY OR TOWN .....

The first enrollment ballot, and only the first one, received for any NEW Contestant, between January 15th and January 29th will count for 800 votes. Fill out all the lines of this ballot, very carefully and mail AT ONCE to the AMERICAN Contest Editor, 89 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

EXTRA VOTES! HURRY!

BY THE CONTEST EDITOR.

The headquarters of the AMERICAN'S $35,000 Prize Contest at No. 372 Bellevue street, will be open tomorrow, Wednesday night, until 10 p. m. for the purpose of transacting business in connection with the contest, and particularly to give every candidate ample opportunity to get in their lots of ten (10) subscriptions on the SPECIAL BONUS VOTE OFFER which has been made to all contestants. All candidates will use good judgment in taking the fullest advantage of this SPECIAL BONUS VOTE OFFER, as it will be of wonderful assistance in piling up a good vote total for the first published list, which will appear in the Sunday AMERICAN in a few weeks.

Don't hold back subscriptions, thinking—perhaps—that there may be a greater offer than you offer later. You may be very greatly disappointed if you do! You NOW have your opportunity to pile up a good vote total—don't lose it. Opportunity rarely knocks twice.

Hurry for Extra Votes.

Get in as many lots of ten (10) subscriptions as you possibly can before tomorrow night at 10 p. m., and for each lot of ten (10) so received—remember—you will get an extra credit of 5,000 votes. After Wednesday the regular vote credit will be given on each subscription.

Votes must be sent in tied together in lots of 100, keeping the ten (10) subscriptions in lots of 100, and one (1) vote coupon in lots of 100, and then they should be enclosed in one outside wrapper, and in the name and address of the contestant, with the district number and the number of votes enclosed, should be PLAINLY marked on this OUTSIDE WRAPPER. Follow these directions carefully—it is important.

It is important that each subscription blank turned in by contestants, should have the SUBSCRIBER'S name and address, with the city or town and State plainly written so that Contest Department may easily read same. Unless these subscription blanks can be plainly read, it will be impossible to send out the papers, and consequently contestants cannot be given credit—so each contestant should read carefully each subscription blank before it is turned in and see that it is properly filled in. The upper left hand space on the subscription blank is for the use of the Contest Department. Do not fill this in.

The AMERICAN will not be responsible for any subscriptions sent in through the mails in any form other than postoffice money order, express order, or certified check. Cash sent through the mails will be sent at the risk of the person sending it.

The lower right hand space on the subscription blank, which says District No. —, should contain the district number of the candidate. For instance, If a candidate lives in District 1, fill this letter space in carefully with the number 1.

Vote coupons which are sent in, must not be sent in in rolls, but should be tied up in flat bundles and carefully and evenly trimmed.

Contest headquarters open till 10 o'clock tomorrow, Wednesday night. Get in your lot of ten before then!

CHINAMAN TALKS SELF TO DEATH

AUBURN, Me., Jan. 31.—Excessive talking caused the death of Chin Mow, a Boston Chinaman, who was visiting Sam Sing in Auburn. Mow had not been strong for years. Sing says that Chin began talking as soon as he got here and had so many things to tell that he talked until he lost breath and fainted. He was laughing at one of his own stories when he fell to the floor dead.

GAME SOCIETY TO MEET.

MIDDLEBORO, Jan. 31.—The annual meeting of the Middleboro Fish and Game Protective Association will be held in the Business Men's Club Friday night. There is much interest taken in the affairs of the association this year, especially on the matter of the propagation of quail and partridge in this section, as these birds are becoming less in number each year.

MISS ARNOLD SOUGHT ABROAD

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The discovery was made by The American to-day that Mrs. Francis R. Arnold, mother of Miss Dorothy Arnold, the missing heiress, of No. 103 East Seventy-ninth street, accompanied her son John W. Arnold, when he left for Europe early this month to ascertain if George C. Griscom, Jr., of Pittsburg could throw any light upon Miss Arnold's strange disappearance.

Mrs. Arnold is now on her way home from Europe, according to Mr. Arnold. It also admitted that he had examined mail and letters sent to Mr. Griscom by the missing girl, but declared nothing in their content served to explain the daughter's mysterious disappearance.

Mr. Arnold said that his wife was in a critical condition of mind and body because of the family's calamity and declared his belief that she would not outlive the year.

Francis P. Garvan of the law firm of Garvan & Armstrong, retained by the family, admitted today that as soon as the girl failed to return home the family was convinced she had eloped with young Griscom. Cables were sent to Europe and supplied that he knew nothing of Miss Arnold's whereabouts. Mrs. Arnold, however, was not satisfied and insisted on going to Italy herself to see the young son in person.

Not With Griscom.

The lawyer added:

"Mrs. Arnold is now fully convinced that Mr. Griscom knows nothing of the facts surrounding her daughter's disappearance."

The American also learned that it was on January 5, and not January 3, as John S. Keith, confidential lawyer to the Arnold family had asserted on sunday, that John Arnold left on the trip.

Mr. Keith told The American on Sunday that Arnold had sailed on the French line for Havre, but may be could not recall what steamer he took. He insists that Arnold was alone.

An American reporter visited the offices of the French line at No. 19 State street and obtained the supplementary list of first cabin passengers sailing on the steamer La Lorraine January 5. The list, made out after the original one, had been printed, contains the names of passengers who booked almost at the last minute. It was printed on the steamer as it sailed across and did not reach this city until a few days ago.

On this list The American reporter found these printed entries: Mrs. F. R. Arnold, Mr. J. W. Arnold.

Mrs. Arnold a Passenger.

That Mrs. Arnold actually sailed with her son was established through attaches of the French line offices. One of the chief clerks said in explaining why he knew that Mrs. Arnold had sailed:

"It is the custom with this company as with all others to scratch from the passenger lists the names of those who have booked passage, and, for some reason, may not have sailed. In the supplementary list here the names of both Mr. Arnold and Mrs. F. R. Arnold appear. They were not taken off the list. This is proof positive that they sailed."

"Could there by any possibility that Mrs. Arnold, at the last minute and after the supplementary list had been made up, failed to sail upon the La Lorraine?" he was asked.

"Absolutely no possibility of that," was the reply.

"Mrs. Arnold did sail. The list as it came back to us is authentic. It is a part of the official record of the sailing list of the steamer."

La Lorraine left New York the morning of January 5 and reached Havre January 12. It was on January 15, according to the statement made by Mr. Keith on Sunday, and again to-day, that Arnold called upon Goldsmith Maid, hotel in Florence.

With Griscom, it was ascertained from Florence, was a veiled woman. It now appears that this veiled woman was Mrs. Arnold, mother of the missing Dorothy.

MARGARET SHIPLEY, WHO EXPECTED TO SEE AFTER TRANCE

POLICE TO END GIRL'S TRANCE

McKEESPORT, Pa., Jan. 31.—"The Lord has called on me to evangelize the world. He will give me back my sight."

Walking from her trance, Margaret Shipley, the girl who has fasted for eight days in expectation of a miracle that would give power to the eyes blind from birth, shrieked these words to-day and then collapsed. After her guardians, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haldeman, had worked over her or some time, she returned to the state of trance and lay rigid, though her eyes opened from time to time.

The Haldermans declare that the girl has also received to them that she can see slightly, but public sentiment is becoming so bitter against them that little time is given to their words except by foreigners.

Police May Stop Fast.

The police are likely to take action at any time. It has been decided that unless he is given some nutrition the authorities will end the fast by force and take the girl to the hospital. Miss Shipley had proclaimed that she would receive her sight completely last evening. The miracle failed to materialize and city officials of McKeesport, after looking over the girl announced their intention to end the fast.

Her father, James Shipley, saw his daughter to-day for the first time in several years. Returning from the "spiritual" world last evening long enough to protest against a flashlight picture being taken of the sightless girl was apparently conscious, although it was long past the period of time that she was supposed to receive the supernatural powers and the gift of sight.

Lying upon an ordinary couch, which was draped with a white sheet in a corner of the little sitting room, the lithe, childlike figure of the blind girl, with its thin, half starved face, presented a pathetic picture. When asked by Mrs. Haldeman if she would consent to have her picture taken she replied, "Wait until I ask God." Then half raising herself she rolled her sightless eyes, twitched her hands and lips convulsively and replied, "God says 'no.'"

Is Starving to Death.

According to physicians who have visited the girl purely out of professional interest, the girl is starving to death. Great inflammation is being expressed by the residents in the vicinity of the Haldeman home.

James Shipley, the father, was one of the group of worshippers who gathered around the girl to-day. He was uncommunicative and refused to discuss the early life of his daughter. It is reported that she girl has been blind since her birth and was not her father for several years. It is said the length of the fast is worrying him and he is expected to force an end to the present situation.

JOKE STARTS A LOVE PANIC

HOLYOKE, Jan. 31.—Maybe it was all meant as a joke in the first place, but the thing is likely to end in weddings. A wedding is a joke, by a long shot. Anyhow, it has started a love panic among Trinity College students.

This is what happened. A number of girls in the local paper mills shipped love notes into a consignment of note books which were being prepared for shipment.

The consignment went to Hartford, the home of Trinity College. The books had been ordered by a member of the faculty, who forgot to take a peep beneath the covers. There were sudden smiles and snickers from all parts of the examination hall after they had been distributed. Investigation showed most of the freshmen had received brass which contained such coy messages as:

"Mary McGrath made this book—Holyoke Paper Mills, girls, wife.

"I made this book for you. Won't you please write to me? Catherine O'Leary, Holyoke Paper Mills.

"Mr. Student: It would be nice to have you write to Rosie Sternberg, Holyoke Paper Mills."

Such messages are productive of results. More than one freshman has left college with his examinations, with the avowed intent of coming to Holyoke to investigate.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

WOMAN DEAD AFTER MENTAL TREATMENT

NORTH ADAMS, Jan. 31.—Emma, wife of Harry Mason colored, whose home was in Saratoga, New York, died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Herman Frisby, No. 371 West Main street, under peculiar circumstances. She was thirty-one years old. Medical Examiner O. J. Brown is investigating the death. Dr. N. M. Crafts was called, but the woman was dead when he reached the house. The woman had not been treated by a physician here and it is there were circumstances which led the doctor to report the case to the medical examiner. It is understood that she had been treated by a doctor or dentist dealer in Colorado.

DAUGHTER OF JEFF DAVIS'S LAWYER DIES

BRATTLEBORO, Jan. 31.—Mrs. Alice Gliddon, fifty-five years old, a niece of Charles E. Gliddon, died at the home in Putney road after an illness of three months. Mrs. Gliddon was born in New York, May 24, 1855, the daughter of Judge John and Mrs. Angelica (Smith) Shaw. She was educated in St. Mary's School and studied art in Paris. Many of her pictures have been exhibited. She was married September 18, 1892. Her father was attorney for Jefferson Davis, and raised Davis's bond after the Civil War.

Cut This Out.

Recipe that Breaks a Cold in a Day and Cures Any Curable Cough.

"Mix half ounce of Concentrated Pine compound and two ounces of glycerine with half a pint of good whiskey; shake well and use in doses of one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bed time." Smaller doses to children according to age. Any one can mix this. But be sure to get only the genuine (Globe) Concentrated Pine. Each half ounce bottle comes in a sealed tin screw-top case. If the druggist does not have it will quickly get it. Many mixtures are of large quantity and cheaper, but it is risky to experiment. This formula comes from a reliable doctor and is certain.

One of our principal uptown druggists states that he sells these ingredients constantly during the Winter and that he has seen this mixture work wonders in curing the severest kind of a cough and cold in short order. He advises that it be kept on hand at all times in every family.

WHITE OPPOSES ONE-MAN POWER

Representative Norman H. White of Brookline, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, this afternoon introduced in the House an order in which he asks that the Ways and Means Committee be given the same powers of investigating the State Departments and institutions of the State as Governor Foss has asked for.

The Governor's request for authority to hire expert help that he may ascertain the financial conditions of all State boards, commissions and institutions, which is in the form of a resolve, was passed to a third reading by the House yesterday. The resolve was opposed by Norman White on the ground that it would make the Governor the appropriating power of the Commonwealth.

Why White Objects.

In explaining his order, Representative White says: "Under the constitution the Legislature and only the Legislature is the appropriating power. The Governor can only recommend or veto. If any Governor is given power to employ experts who shall render him their views on the financial condition of any institutions or boards then it is perfectly clear that the Legislature through its Ways and Means Committee should have the fundamental power of ascertaining whether or not the recommendations thus ascertained be in single individual are sound and safe and warranted.

"The Ways and Means Committee can not safely adopt any recommendation as to the financial conditions of our institutions unless the committee itself shall have the same opportunities and powers of investigation that any other persons may have. The Walker bill as now amended by yesterday's resolve makes the Governor virtually a one-man power in the Commonwealth as to the amounts of money our institutions may receive. If the Legislature through its Ways and Means Committee cannot have the same powers of investigation of the finances of the State that the Governor has then the Ways and Means Committee better get out of business.

Authority for Committee.

"I have no objection to giving the Governor all possible information, but I have objection to being placed in a position where I cannot analyze his recommendations with as much care as his own experts have used.

Representative White's order purposes to give the Ways and Means Committee exactly the same authorities and powers as the Governor, including the power to summons witnesses, order the production of papers and books, inventories and accounts and the hiring of experts and accountants.

THEATRE MANAGER AND CASH DISAPPEAR

WINCHENDON, Jan. 31.—Frederick C. Kelley of Bellows Falls, who has been manager of a moving-picture theatre here, is missing, and all the cash from the treasury of the theatre, also, so it is declared here, is missing. Kelley disappeared Saturday night, and it is said he took about $250 with him. Kelley told P. W. McGee, a local hotel man, that he had lost almost $400 in the business.

COMMUNITY AND ECONOMY

Miss 1915 poked her nose into her mother's clothes closet and drew back affrighted.

"Mamma, what is that funny thing hanging in there?" she asked.

"That," answered the mother, "was what I used to wear in 1911. They called it a skirt, but you don't see any of them now that women have adopted the pantaloons."

"How horrible they must have been," remarked Miss 1915.

And her mother will agree—at least the backers of the "pantaloons-for-women" movement say she will. For the days of the old-fashioned clinging skirts are drawing to a close, they argue, and women of fashion will soon be seen parading along Commonwealth avenue or Tremont street, as it may be, in divided skirts—pantaloons, "Paris petticoats," "Boston novelties," pants, or whatever you may choose to call them.

While waiting for this dream to come true, the AMERICAN'S comic artists to-day give their ideas of how women will look when they adopt the pantaloons. Some of the artists are married, and that's the reason they have designed costumes free of frills and other expensive decorations. Take Ted's, for instance. His conception of the fashionable gown of the next generation is one that will cost but $10. The more expensive costumes were designed by the bachelor knights of the paint and brush.

Miss Gertrude Garrison of Chicago and Mrs. Alma Webster Powell of Brooklyn are champions of the pantaloons. Both wear their "comfort costumes" in public, and they predict that it won't be many days before the women of the country follow their lead.

LESLIE STORRS, LAWYER, DYING

Leslie K. Storrs, a prominent Boston lawyer, and a member of the law firm of Edward S., Leopold M. Goulston & Leslie S. Storrs, of No. 17 Milk street, is dying at his home in Jamaica Plain, of malignant kidney trouble. He was stricken last week in his office, and his physicians have given up hope of saving him.

Attorney Storrs, who was a leader in musical circles, and secretary of the Handel-Haydn Society, has been ill at frequent intervals during the last six months, and underwent several operations.

Mr. Storrs was born in Melrose, Fla., where his parents he moved to Macon, Ga., here he lived until he was seventeen years old. Then he came North, locating in Boston, where he studied law in the Young Men's Christian Association.

He has been a practicing attorney for seven years, and is now thirty-nine years old. He has for years been a prominent figure in the social life of Jamaica Plain, and is a member of the Elliot and Dunlap clubs.

At his bedside are his wife, who was Miss Elizabeth Wakefield of Boston, and his two children, Harry, aged twelve, and Celia, aged five. He has a brother, who is assistant United States District Attorney in the southern district of Georgia. His mother and sister reside in Macon, Ga.

M'CURDY MAY FLY FROM CUBA

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 31.—J. A. D. McCurdy, the plucky Canadian aviator who failed in his attempt to fly here from Key West, after completing 100 miles of the 150-mile trip, was the feature of the aviation tournament here today. The interest in the young birdman was intensified when the report became current that McCurdy might make an attempt to fly back to the United States, starting from Camp Columbia and landing at Key West. Negotiations were commenced today to try to persuade Mr. McCurdy to consent to the trip, although he did not give a definite answer.

"The accident yesterday was entirely unavoidable," declared the aviator today. "And it only increases my desire to effect a successful conquest of the Floridian straits. Flying over a wide expanse of water is much more exhilirating than flying over land. It gives a glorious sensation of mighty distances and the vastness of spaces.

"At first I did not like it but the desire for it has grown. Indeed I am afraid it may become a habit. I do not know when I shall be able to make another attempt but I have the fullest confidence in both myself and my Curtiss biplane and I am sure of success. Flying over water is safer than flying over land. The surface beneath is flat which causes an absence of air pockets and in alighting the danger is much lessened. The dangerous pockets are caused by buildings and other obstructions breaking the course of the wind and causing cross currents. The atmosphere over the water is usually not so affected."

When McCurdy appeared upon the aviation field he was given a mighty ovation. Smilingly he raised his cap and waved his hand to the enthusiastic Cubans, who cheered him for fully ten minutes. McCurdy, who is a polished young man of twenty-three, and a graduate of the University of Canada, bears his honors well. Although pleased with the interest of the Cubans he does not seek notoriety.

HUNT MISSING SPINNEY GIRL

At the request of her mother, Mrs. Alice Heindl of No. 8 Parker street, Everett, the police are to-day making a search for Miss Bessie M. Spinney, who left her home yesterday because her mother had threatened to send her back to her father, Mrs. Heindl's former husband, at Eliot, Me.

A story to the effect that the girl had been detained against her will at Mrs. Heindl's home was emphatically denied there to-day. The mother, who is one of the best known women in Everett, and who has been prominent in charitable movements, went to-day as she told about the trouble she had had with her daughter.

"My daughter, who has been with her father," said Mrs. Heindl, "came to me over two years ago. She said she had run away from her father. She went to work in Boston. I found that she was not acting properly and I threatened to send her back to her father. She said if she would never go back.

"Yesterday I told Bessie that she would have to go back to-day and that no husband would put her on the train. She went to her room, removed all of her nice clothing, put on some old clothes and left.

"The skirt she wore was an old, torn one from the rag-bag. She left every article of clothing that I had purchased for her. I was sick in bed when she went away. I do not think she has gone home. I think she is with acquaintances in Boston.

"I have done everything I could for my daughter. We gave her a piano, I bought her a rug lately and on Christmas we had a tree for her. Her step-father also did everything he could to make her life happy. She was free to come and go as she pleased. I think she has followed the advice of those who are not her true friends."

TWO EVERETT BOYS MISSING

Jay F. Thomas and Paul McCarthy, fifteen-year-old Everett High School boys, living on Lewis street, disappeared from their homes yesterday, and it is believed that they intended to go to New York.

The police of Everett and Boston were notified of their disappearance.

The suspicions of the Thomas family were aroused when he withdrew $14 from a bank in Everett Saturday and then asked his father for the fare to New York. He denied that he intended to leave home.

Mrs. Thomas searched her son's clothing Saturday night and found the tell tale bank book and the $14. She secreted the money in an attempt to frustrate his plan, leaving him fifteen cents. He left home as usual about 7:30 o'clock, and when he did not return home at 1:30 it was learned that both he and the McCarthy boy did not attend school.

Jay is the eldest of five children, the youngest being four weeks. He officiated as godfather at the christening of his youngest sister Sunday night.

COLLEGE GIRLS ROUTED BY FIRE

LUTHERVILLE, Md., Jan. 31.—Fire today destroyed the main building of the Maryland College for Women here. There were forty girls asleep on the upper floors when the fire began and when awakened by the smoke and crackling of the flames all rushed panic stricken in only their night clothes into the zero temperature.

DRIVES A BAD COLD OR THE GRIPPE FROM YOUR SYSTEM IN A FEW HOURS

The most effective and harmless way to cure the Grippe or break a severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach or limbs, is a dose of Pape's Cold Compound every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken.

You will distinctly feel the cold breaking and all grippe symptoms going after the very first dose. It promptly relieves the most miserable headache, neuralgia pains, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, soreness, stiffness, and rheumatic aching.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine made anywhere else in the world which will cure your cold or end Grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 25-cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

After three years' research we have conclusively demonstrated that quinine is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

SPECIAL VOTE OFFER WILL COUNT BIG IN THE PRIZE CONTEST

The SPECIAL BONUS VOTE OFFER will be good until to-morrow, Wednesday night, at 10 o'clock.

Every contestant in the great race should rake his district from end to end in order to get in as many lots of ten (10) subscriptions before to-morrow night at 10 o'clock as it is possible to scrape together.

Think of it! An extra credit of 5,000 votes for each and every lot of ten (10) subscriptions received before then! Is it worth while?

Well — we think those who are wise enough to make the most of this offer will say so when the first list of contestants' standing is printed in a few weeks in the Sunday AMERICAN. It is then that the work done on this SPECIAL VOTE BONUS OFFER will count! — and count big.

Remember — to-morrow night at 10 o'clock winds up this SPECIAL BONUS VOTE OFFER, so — get YOUR share of this extra vote value.

HERE IS THE SPECIAL BONUS VOTE OFFER: To any contestant sending us ten subscriptions, properly filled out and signed, and accompanied by the necessary guarantee before 10 P. M., Wednesday, February 1, we will allow a special credit of 5,000 votes in addition to the regular vote credit on each subscription. These ten subscriptions may be for any of the periods listed on the back of each subscription blank. Of course it is to your interest to get them for the longest period possible. If you can get them all for three years, so much the better, that would give you 50,000 votes and an addition of 5,000 on this SPECIAL OFFER as well as 1,000 already credited when your ENROLLMENT was received, a total of 56,000 votes. If you cannot get them all, get as many as you can, but be sure to turn them in before February 1.

Get subscriptions to the Sunday AMERICAN. For each Sunday subscription received (accompanied by the small cash guarantee required as an evidence of good faith) vote credits will be given, as explained in schedule printed below:

No Sunday subscriptions for less than six months' period will be received.

You do not have to collect subscriptions in advance, but as an evidence of good faith each Sunday AMERICAN subscription turned in must be accompanied by a small cash GUARANTEE payment, as follows:

Length of Subscription.	Guarantee Required.	Vote Credit.
6 Months	25 Cents	500
1 Year	50 Cents	1,500
2 Years	100 Cents	3,500
3 Years	100 Cents	5,000

The guaranteed payment, in each case, will apply on the LAST part of the terms of each subscription—subscribers must begin to pay for the paper immediately beginning with your newsdealer's first delivery, at his regular delivery rate. The guarantee payments DO NOT apply until the LATTER part of the subscription term—For instance, if you have subscribed for three years and paid the $1.00 guarantee required with a three years' subscription, at the end of your term of subscription you will not have to pay for the last dollar's worth of papers.

Votes should be sent in tied together in bundles of 100. All contestants are requested to use a rubber stamp with contestant's name and address. Only the top three or four coupons in each bundle of 100 need be stamped, but all bundles of 100 should be enclosed in an OUTSIDE WRAPPER, with name, address and DISTRICT NUMBER of each candidate stamped on wrapper.

The one who receives the largest number of votes, irrespective of districts, will be awarded the capital prize.

The ones who receive the largest number of votes in each district will be awarded the prize as scheduled. In the event of total votes for any contestants who win being tied, similar prizes will be given to each winner so tied.

Each vote coupon will be good for two weeks from the date printed in the AMERICAN and valueless after two weeks.

The contest began Sunday, January 15, 1911, and will end at midnight, June 15, 1911.

The AMERICAN reserves the right to amend these rules and conditions from time to time, if it may seem necessary, in order to protect all contestants from any possible contingency which may arise.

FISHING BOATS BADLY BATTERED

Only two vessels of the T wharf fishing fleet braved the gale for the sake of the market to-day, the Robert and Arthur and the Morning Star going in after a hard struggle of which both showed signs. The other vessels are riding out the gale and may not get in until to-morrow.

Both little vessels showed the effects of their struggle with the gales. Hulls and rigging were coated with ice and several of the crews were frostbitten.

In battling across the bay after she had left the fishing grounds off Thacher's Island, the Morning Star ran into a large fleet of sail which was blown away and her jumbo boom was broken. Fred Hudson, a member of the crew, was struck by the boom when the riding sail went and badly injured on the head and had to be taken to the Marine Hospital.

The Morning Star had her jumbo boom splintered and her bowsprit loosened in battling across the bay while trying to make the harbor.

The non-arrival of the rest of the fleet sent fresh fish prices skyward. The Robert and Arthur and the Morning Star only brought in 100,000 pounds between them and the price of cod jumped to eight and three-quarters cents a pound on the vessel and haddock advanced from four cents to seven.

CHASE & SANBORN'S HIGH GRADE TEAS IN CUT FEES

BECAME THIEF FOR BABY'S SAKE

Mrs. Irene Dunning, an eighteen-year-old mother, spent last night in a cell in the Charles street jail and is a prisoner there to-day, with her two weeks-old boy because she loved the child so well that she could not see it deprived of clothes. So she stole. Motherly love is her excuse.

Mrs. Dunning was arraigned in the Police Court yesterday charged with stealing goods from several dentists. She was held in $200 by Judge Burke for a further hearing Wednesday. Unable to furnish the bail she was taken to the Charles street jail. Her baby was allowed to stay with her.

Yesterday she told a pitiable story of misfortune and want.

"I do not know why I took the goods," said Mrs. Dunning. "I threw it away after I had taken it. I could not get clothing for my baby. I was willing to suffer myself but I wanted things for him being. My husband was out of work and I could not get them.

Thought Only of Baby.

"Since baby has been born I've had a hard time of it. I could get work by self and my husband could not find anything.

"I would look at my baby and wonder whether it would suffer as much as I have suffered since it was born. Nothing was coming into the house and I had to get milk for my infant. Already I had asked for some and it was given me. Then I thought that I would ask for my meals, but I would see what I could do myself.

"I went out that morning and left my baby home. I had been thinking about the baby all along. I want it to have things. It is such a pretty baby.

"Then I saw the goal. I don't know what made me take it. I suppose it was thinking about baby. I don't care about myself, but I could not bear to see baby so much in need of many things.

"If my husband had work this would not have happened. But he has tried all along.

"It's hard to see your little child in want of things.

Mother-Love Her Excuse.

"I am sorry for it now. But that morning I could not control myself. I could starve for my child but I could not let it go without some decent clothing.

"I did not mean to steal. If I had only thought when I took it in my hands, 'Baby will be ashamed of me when she grows up,' I would not have done it.

"But I did not think at all. Just as soon as I took it I threw it away. I did not know what it was worth.

"Now it is done. I have never been in prison before. If they will only let me go for baby's sake, I want to get out and take care of her."

Mrs. Dunning cried as she told her story. She maintains that it was mother's love that drove her to do what she is accused of. Her husband, John Dunning, said, "If I can only get work I can make both all right. But I have not had any work in a long time. If I could get a job at nine dollars a week I could make my young wife happy. All this has come upon us because I have had nothing to do."

KING GEORGE NOT TO GO ON STAND

LONDON, Jan. 31.—King George has decided not to take the stand at the trial of Edward Mylius, which opens to-morrow before the Lord Chief Justice and a special jury. Mylius is charged with being responsible for a libel on King George in the Liberty Review, of which Israel James, a former Boston lawyer, is editor.

The alleged libel consists of a statement that the King had a morganatic wife in the early nineties and that as a result there were two children, one of whom is now nineteen and the other twenty. The woman was said to be a daughter of Admiral Sir Chine Seymour.

ELIZA-CROSSING-ICE STUNT SAVES FIVE

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Jan. 31.—Leaping from cake to cake of the ice floes in St. Mary's river, two men and three women reached shore safely after a thrilling experience. The party was spending the evening fishing in the vicinity out on the river when a fifty-mile gale arose and the ice around the fishing shanty began to break up. The five started for the shore in a race for their lives. Jumping from floe to floe in the darkness the men took turns in helping the women, and one of the latter fainted from fright and exhaustion.

GALE FANS $25,000 BLAZE IN CLINTON

CLINTON, Jan. 31.—The Carney block on Mechanic street, near Grove street, was destroyed, with contents, by fire. The damage is estimated at $25,000, and is partly covered by insurance. The block was a three-story, wooden structure with two stores and four tenements.

The wind was blowing at the rate of fifty miles an hour, and the block, situated at the top of the hill above the Lancaster mills, was quickly in flames, and sparks set fire to adjoining buildings. The fire department fought the flames for three hours.

ELEVEN JURORS TRY ROCKEFELLER CASE

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 31.—Eleven men of a jury that was discharged because the Criminal Court declared its findings a miscarriage of justice have been selected to try the suit of Mary E. Condee against John D. Rockefeller for $5,000 damages alleged to have resulted to her property adjoining the Rockefeller building at the time the skyscraper was erected. The jury that failed to fill the civil court considerations was chosen for the Rockefeller case when the regular jury was assigned to another action.

ST. ANN KNIGHTS WIN PRIZE DRILL

The Knights of St. John the Baptist held their annual prize drill at Cambridgeport gymnasium this night. Company A of Somerville won the first prize, a pennant, donated by the Rev. Father Doody. The officers of the winning company are Captain Matthew G. Sullivan, Lieutenant Robert E. Coleman, Second Lieutenant William J. Reardon. St. Ann's Drum Corps won the pennant for the best and best drilled drum corps; they were led by Major Richard Burke. Tac Hodges were Major Butler and the staff of the Ninth Regiment, M. V. M.

FORTY GIRLS FLEE FIRE IN COLLEGE

BALTIMORE, Jan. 31.—A fire in the Maryland College for Women, a fashionable school at Lutherville, early this morning caused great excitement among the girl students. An alarm was given and all in the building into freezing atmosphere in kimonos and night dresses. They were quickly taken to other parts of the building.

ELECTRICAL MEN TO MEET.

The executive committee of Electrical Workers' Union No. 103 to-day sent out notices to the 500 members of the union of a meeting to be held in Wells Memorial Building to-morrow night, at which some action will be taken to help secure the passage of the legislative bill for the licensing of electrical workers and an examination to prove that they are competent.

'NEWSIES' WILL DANCE TONIGHT

There will be a big crowd up at the newsboys' annual ball, which takes place to-night at Paul Revere Hall. There will be lots of fun, too. MAX (Rocky) Berman will dance with Miss Pauline Brice of the "Follies of 1910" company, now playing in this city. There will be other notables there. Besides Governor Foss and Mayor Fitzgerald and the editors and publishers of the Boston newspapers, Manly Mathewson and Chief Meyers, the two famous ball players of the New York giants, will be there.

The proceeds of the ball go to a worthy cause, the sending of two of the members of the Newsboys' Union to Harvard College. Two members of the union are sent to Harvard every year and are given a thorough college education at the expense of the union.

The grand march will be a feature. The "newsies" will be in full evening dress and will have for partners in the parade and subsequent dances some of the prettiest girls in Boston. It is predicted that more than one hundred couples will be in line.

The grand march will be led by President Hyman J. Cohen and Miss Nellie Hennessey. Daniel J. Gallagher will be floor director. The Waverly Orchestra, under the leadership of T. E. O'Connor, will render the music.

Others who will be present will include members of the school committee, City Council, Police Commissioner O'Meara, H. Henry Sullivan, superintendent of public grounds, and a host of others.

The officers of the ball are: Hyman J. Cohen, floor marshal; Jacob Appelbaum, assistant floor marshal; Benjamin Washman, assistant marshal; Daniel V. Murkerin, floor director; Oscar Cohen, assistant floor director; M. E. Greenberg, assistant floor director; Samuel Shapiro, floor aid.

HOSPITAL NURSE IS BRIDE OF PATIENT

They have changed the name of the head nurse out at the hospital of Dr. Stedman, No. 36 South street, Roxbury. But it's the same nurse. It's all the fault of one of her patients. This week she is Mrs. George H. Coursen. Last week she was Christina S. Hathaway.

The return of a marriage license reveals a pretty little romance that gave the rest of those at the hospital a decided surprise. On Sunday, Mr. Coursen, a wealthy widower of sixty-four who had been under treatment at the sanitarium for some time, took Mrs. Hathaway out for a drive in his auto. They went directly to the residence of the Rev. Arthur D. D. Addison, rector of All Saints' Church, and were married. Then after an exceedingly brief honey moon tour in the car they returned to the hospital, where they again became patient and head nurse, respectively.

LEAP AT FIRE KILLS WOMAN IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—One woman was killed by a leap from a fourth floor fire escape, two others were burned, three others and two men were overcome by smoke and five hundred occupants of adjoining buildings were routed early to-day as the flames ruined the four-story building at No. 635 Sixth avenue. Mrs. Michael Celia, the woman who leaped to death, first appeared on the fire escape in front of her bedroom window in the fourth floor. Citizens and firemen rallied in her to wait until rescuers could ascend, but made their way to the fifth floor of the flames leaping up the side of the building toward her she closed her eyes and with a scream plunged forward. She landed on the roof of a one-story extension, and when picked up was dead.

BOSTON ATTORNEYS INVITE TAFT HERE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—George Whitney, secretary, Frederick E. Wadhams, treasurer, and Charles H. Butler of the Executive Committee of the American Bar Association, called on President Taft to-day to invite him to speak at the annual meeting of the association, which will be held in Boston, August 29-31. The President took the invitation under advisement.

RHEUMATIC PAINS IN BACK AND HIPS

May Cause Groundless Fear of Kidney Trouble.

Not every pain in the back indicates kidney trouble. Before you become alarmed try a good remedy for rheumatism or lumbago, such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and see if the symptoms do not disappear.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the treatment of rheumatism lies in their direct response to the needs of the blood. That they do this well is shown by the gradual disappearance of the symptoms and the return of color and health. They lay the foundation for permanent health in the future.

Mrs. Andrew Gregory, of R. F. D. No. 2, Concord, Michigan, who was cured by this treatment, says:

"I suffered from rheumatism for a year and think it was brought on by a run down condition caused by overwork. The muscles in my arms and legs were awfully sore and lame, and I was so crippled that I couldn't move about much. For a time I couldn't feed or help myself and suffered from pains in my back over the kidneys and in my hips. Mystomach was too weak to eat food, was filled with gas and pained me a great deal. At times my heart was weak and gave me much pain. My complexion was yellow and I was weak and discouraged. I was sick in bed for three months.

"The doctor I employed could not help me and finally I stopped taking their medicine. A friend who was calling on me one day asked me why I didn't try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I sent to the drug store and bought a box. I soon began to have color, and people were asking me what I was taking. I took the pills until cured and have since recommended them to many others."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have also cured anæmia, chlorosis, general debility, after-effects of the grip and fevers and should be given a trial wherever a tonic for the blood and nerves is needed.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are always the same and are sold only in packages bearing the well-known trademark.

The genuine are sold by all druggists or will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," containing fuller information will be sent free upon request.

DRAPER MILL BOSS RESIGNS

HOPEDALE, Jan. 31.—Robert Goodhue Draper, one of the bobbin department, in the Draper mill plant here, has left the employ of the corporation.

Mr. Goodhue's resignation followed the recent "Black Hand" scare which caused such a sensation here. It was he who, it was reported, had received a threatening letter signed "Black Hand" predicting the destruction of the mills.

The superintendent of the mills and Ebenezer Draper, son of former Governor Draper, later issued a statement denying that they feared the blowing up of the mills. Mr. Draper stated that there had been a considerable string of vandalism, such as the cutting of belts and the surreptitious crippling of machinery.

To trap the miscreant makers, who were believed to be acting out of revenge because of the recent reduction in wages, the regular mill detectives were more zealous than ever, and outside youths were hired to work as engineers.

A great part of the trouble was in the bobbin department, though on one occasion the huge engine belt that whirled the machinery throughout the whole plant, was slashed, causing a cessation of work for a week. Though the number caused by these acts of vandalism has been trifling, the inconvenience has been great.

Mr. Goodhue, who resigned Saturday night, is succeeded by F. W. Redgrave, a former employe in the bobbin department.

The officials of the corporation refuse to comment upon the change in the heads of the department.

JAPAN'S PLANS FOR U. S. WAR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Authentic information regarding Japan's plans, should that nation ever go to War with the United States, has come to light in Washington. From Tokio comes the word that these plans are quite the contrary to what all of these theorists contemplate.

Reports which have appeared in American newspapers and magazines are materially calculated to do incalculable and are based to some extent on a preconceived idea that Japan would strike quickly and gain some advantage in the early and stages of a conflict. Nothing could be further from the truth.

According to a Japanese official, a man regarded as the best of authority, who was interviewed in Tokio, Japan would not make any attempt of attack or invasion to gain a temporary advantage, only to be dislodged at some later period, for she well knows and recognizes the resources and wealth of the United States.

A Policy of Waiting.

The official continued, "Japan's plans would be to concentrate all her naval strength in or near her home waters and await the arrival of her foes. By these means she would draw the American Navy far away from its base of supplies, and by all the methods within her power would try in vain to weaken the American naval strength by means of torpedo attacks, submarines, mines, subterfuges, etc., before giving battle.

"But suppose the American Navy would not cross the Pacific to meet the Japanese, what then?" he was asked.

"Then, he said, they would, with oriental patience, wait and wait. It would cost so much to wait, and they could wait while you Americans couldn't, you would become restless and would be sure to come, soon or late. After a time the American public would clamor for something to be doing, and the army and the American Navy would want to be doing something. You could not wait as long as they could and they know it. If they proved successful, then the plan of attack of invasion of the Pacific Coast and the Philippines would be attempted, and after a complete mastery of the Pacific had been attained.

Japanese Are Opportunists.

"The Japanese are opportunists in diplomacy, in commerce, in war. Their diplomacy is never played on the broad, wide principles of the United States, but they gain an advantage whenever an opening occurs. In commerce, likewise, and so the war game will be played. Strange you hear of a Japanese invasion on American territory, but did you ever hear of any one dreaming of an American invasion of Japan as a possibility? An island empire with half of the entire population (40,000,000) of the United States confined in an area smaller than that of one of your Pacific states could not be expected with a formidable army and a population so vital that it would need nearly every man, woman and child would have to be practically annihilated to permit of such an event.

An American naval authority to whom this plan was outlined said:

"I am confident that that is Japan's plan."

To answer to the query, "What would you do in such a case?" he replied: "We would come right over here and meet them."

LEGISLATORS FROM WORCESTER DINE

Governor Foss, Lieut-Governor Frothingham, President Treadway of the Senate and Speaker Walker of the House were the guests of the Worcester county legislators at the annual dinner of the Senators and Representatives from the heart of the Commonwealth, which was held at the Parker house. Covers were laid for thirty. Senator Levi S. Greenwood of Gardner presided, and Representative R. W. Washburn of Worcester, was toastmaster and the after-dinner exercises, which consisted of short informal addresses by the guests and several of the legislators present.

KOPPANG DIVORCE HEARING SOON

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 31.—Depositions in the divorce case of Mrs. Beatrix Dorr Koppang, formerly of Bar Harbor, and who had been in Boston studying manicuring, will be taken in a few days. Mrs. Koppang will charge her husband, Capt. Gerhard Herman H. S. Koppang, stationed at the New York navy yard, with desertion and non-support.

TELEPHONE RATE HEARING ON FEB. 6

The committee on joint rules will hear the petition of Representative John J. Conway of Boston for an investigation of the present telephone rates and service in room No. 240, the largest in the State House, after the session at 2 p. m. on Monday, February 6.

CLOSE OPEN AIR SCHOOL TO-DAY

To-day the open air school for tuberculous children at Franklin Park goes out of existence, despite the long and hard fight which those who are in favor of the continuation of this school have made to have it kept running.

Chairman Edward F. McSweeney of the Consumptives' Hospital trustees stated that the school would be closed as usual this afternoon and not be reopened again.

He said that at the school there are but six children who really need treatment for tuberculosis, and that these will be otherwise cared for.

MAINE EDITOR DEAD.

SANFORD, Me., Jan. 31.—Fred B. Averill, editor and publisher of the Sanford Tribune, a weekly newspaper, which he established in 1899, and treasurer of the Maine Press Association, is dead as the result of appendicitis, for which an operation was performed a week ago.

FOSS FOR CITY CONFEDERATION

Governor Foss advocates a confederation of all the cities and towns within a radius of ten miles of the State House as a method by which to have Boston take her proper place in the standing of the cities of the world. He outlined his plan at a get-together meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at the Hotel Somerset and was heartily applauded. He said in part:

"First of all, to my mind, before we can hope to realize the fullest degree of the advantages of a great city and of better commercial relations, we must have the Greater Boston. These suburban communities within a radius of at least ten miles of the State House should be confederated into a single unit, not simply a commercial one, but a political one as well.

Momentum Needed.

"It is not reasonable to expect that any confederation which does not embody a central government can accomplish and maintain the end desired for no group of separate communities can act with that accord or possess that power and momentum which belongs only to great, centralized cities.

"We are essentially disloyal if we deny to our home towns this commercial federation under one central government, for if we regard the industrial area of those metropolitan communities as a unit we shall find that they are already growing industrially in 9 per cent. faster ratio than Chicago itself, whereas this rate would be vastly increased under a commercial union

Detriment to Boston.

"We are essentially disloyal if we deny ourselves this political confederation, because we are at present rated as the seventy-fifth among the great cities of the world, whereas, on the just valuation of our united population we are in fact the eleventh.

"Boston suffers by reason of this false position we gain hold.

William McAdoo, the noted financial backer of New York, made an address in which he assailed corporation monopoly.

"SACRED COD" FOR TOWN HALL

A sacred codfish pointing its snout in the direction of the wind will be the crowning decoration of the new Nahant Town Hall, if the plans of the special committee named to draw up the plans has its way.

Senator Lodge, who among other things is moderator of the town of Nahant, appointed this committee. As the Senator generally has his way, it is fair to assume that the special committee will have its way.

At that, if any of the Nahant selectmen not on the committee show a disposition to kick on the sacred cod as a weathervane, maybe "Nell" Curtis can be coaxed into another telephonic request and remove the bone.

The new town hall is to cost $60,000. The committee recommends that it be located on Nahant Triangle, the main street of the town. A large colonial style building of red brick with a cupola and weathervane having the sacred codfish for a solitaire, simulating for all town officials, audience room, gallery, kitchen, dumb waiter and dry goods is suggested.

The committee says: "The town of Nahant was never in a better position financially to extend a large amount of money on a new town hall than now. It owes not a dollar. The amount of taxable property is not diminishing; rather the contrary."

The report will go before the annual town meeting in March.

DOCTOR SHOT ON EVE OF WEDDING

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Held without bail, charged with the murder of Dr. Daniel A. Cassella, whose marriage to Miss Katherine C. Hagelstein was to have taken place to-day, Miss Madeline Bacigalupo spent today in the Tombs, refusing to make any statement. Less than five minutes after she entered the physician's office yesterday Miss Bacigalupo screamed. Then two shots were heard. Salvatore Sollazo, clerk in the store, and Basilio Nunzio, a butcher, who was waiting for a prescription to be filled, ran into the office.

Dr. Cassella lay on the floor, face upward, his right hand resting on a revolver. There were two bullet holes in his forehead. To the clerks at the drug shops Miss Bacigalupo was known as the doctor's niece, he having introduced her as such. By others the Bacigalupo girl is said to have since been a housekeeper of Dr. Cassella.

HOUSE PASSES BILL FOR TARIFF BOARD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—After a stormy session, the House of Representatives at 11:40 last night put through the bill for a permanent tariff board recommended by President Taft, by a vote of 186 to 93. The term of office shall be six years each, and those first appointed shall serve two, three, four, five and six years respectively, as shall be designated by the President. The salaries are to be $7,500 annually for the chairman and $7,000 for the other members.

LIPKOWSKA TOO THIN FOR 'THAIS'

Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, the physical director of Harvard, will receive a new pupil within a few days in the person of Lydia Lipkowska, the opera singer.

"I am what you call in English too slender," said the beautiful Russian artist. "I only weigh ninety pounds and I have to weigh at least 110 before I can play Thais."

Lipkowska is very much worried. The numerous journeys by rail from Boston to New York, Chicago, Montreal and Philadelphia have caused the Ballo singer to lose weight, and she is wondering how to get it back again.

It doesn't matter in ordinary roles whether the artiste is fat or thin, but "Thais" is an opera in which the physical charms of the leading singer are more appreciated than in other parts.

Must Look the Part.

Everybody remembers the beautiful "Thais" of Mary Garden. Lipkowska is anxious that people shall consider her figure as perfect as that of her great predecessor in the role—but she needs about twenty pounds.

"Thais," as opera-goers will remember, was a very popular lady in Alexandria, who fascinated all men by the glory of her form and form. She was converted to Christianity by the monk Athanael, and left her evil life to become a holy nun. Unfortunately, the monk also fell in love with her and he lost his soul as she found hers.

"I will not sing 'Thais' until I lock the part," declared Lydia to Director Hassel. "You have made me work so hard that I have lost nearly twenty pounds and now I have got to get them back again.

"I know how to reduce weight, that is easy," said the prima donna. "But how on earth do you get fat?"

"Six meals a day," suggested Alexander Kahn, her manager.

To Join Sargent Class.

"I don't want that kind of fat, stupid," declared the singer. "I want lovely, symmetrical fat, that makes the owner more beautiful, not ugly."

"Better see Professor Sargent of Harvard," suggested Theodore Bauer. "He knows how to develop the perfect figure."

"I will do that," cried Lydia, and immediately popped into relations with the famous physical culturist. She has not begun her weight gaining regime yet but will start immediately upon her return from New York.

FAILURE IN CLASS, GIRL SUES TEACHER

TAUNTON, Jan. 31.—The town of Dighton has been made the defendant in a rather unusual suit for $800, filed by counsel of Vernon Briggs, a twenty-year-old pupil of the public schools, stating that on September 20, 1910, she with others in her class failed in a spelling lesson, and was ordered by her teacher, Miss Mary W. Matthewson, to commit to memory 36 lines of "Gray's Elegy." None of the class was able to recite the thirty-six lines, but Vernon recited thirty-two of them, and in consequence of her failure to repeat the entire number was given forty-four additional lines.

FUNERAL OF MRS. WARD TO-MORROW

Funeral services for Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Ward, famous author and anti-vivisectionist, will be held to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the First Baptist Church at Newton Centre. The body will be cremated at Mount Auburn Cemetery. Among many of the famous men and women who were intimate friends of Mrs. Ward are buried. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Charles M. Southgate of Boston.

BOY KILLED BY RUNAWAY AUTO

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 31.—Elmer Conners, nineteen years old, of Waterbury, Ct., was killed by a runaway automobile. The machine, while standing in front of the Seattle A. C., with neither chauffeur nor passengers, suddenly broke away, passed down Cherry street hill and ran over Conners. The machine then brought up against a crowded street car. The impact threw the fifty passengers into a state of panic and several were badly bruised in the excitement.

MGR. FITZGERALD OF HOLYOKE, DEAD

HOLYOKE, Jan. 31.—The Rt. Rev. Mgr. Edward S. Fitzgerald, pastor of the Church of the Holy Rosary, is dead at the House of Mercy Hospital. Father Fitzgerald was elevated to the monsignori last December on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination.

He has held pastorates at Springfield, North Adams, Great Barrington, and Lee.

ARCHBISHOP RYAN SLIGHTLY IMPROVED.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31.—Archbishop Ryan's condition was reported as slightly improved early to-day. At the cathedral residence it was said the venerable prelate was resting well and that there had been no recurrence of the sinking spells. His condition is the result of overwork which he has been under.

DANVILLE GRAFT PROBE DROPPED

DANVILLE, Ill., Jan. 31.—Investigation by a grand jury of alleged trafficking in votes in Vermilion county came to an end after the inquisitors had been advised that all the men who had received money at elections were prepared to say that they got the money as paid workers and not for their own votes.

Beautiful Hair Comes With Dry Shampooing

(From Woman's National Journal.)

Dry shampooing always has been and always will be popular with the woman who takes pride in long, abundant and glossy hair. The dry shampoo does away with so much of the inconvenience and bother connected with washing the hair—eliminates the long drying hours and abolishes the danger of catching cold—indeed, is so all-around satisfactory that one wonders why soap and water, eggs, etc., can find favor with any one whatever.

Dry shampoos certainly stimulate the growth of hair. There can be no doubt as to that. Just mix four ounces of powdered orris root with four ounces of borax, sprinkle a tablespoonful of this mixture upon the head, brush the powder well through the hair; do this two or three times a week for a while and see the results for yourself. This will keep your hair light and fluffy, and beautifully lustrous. It corrects the conditions of the scalp that cause hair to become streaked, dull, colorless, coarse and brittle.

LOEB REVEALS NEW CUSTOMS LEAK

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Investigations conducted by Collector Loeb with the assistance of United States Appraiser Wakeman have uncovered another leak through which the government has lost possibly hundreds of thousands of dollars. It is contraband by Federal officials, that importers of musical instruments have for years brought into this country instruments on all kinds of pretext to disguise how their true value was that the government's examiners have accepted these figures.

GIRL DIES AFTER TAKING WATER CURE

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 31.—Dr. Kellip, the coroner, is investigating the death of Marie Reichart, thirteen years old, daughter of the pastor of the Lutheran Church in Williamsburg, Pa. The child had been taking a "water cure" here. Dr. N. S. Slide, who was called to attend the girl, said she was suffering from diphtheria and refused to issue a certificate of death.

CLERGYMAN DIES IN CHURCH HOUSE

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31.—While discussing the protest against the production of "La Saumritaine" in this city by Sarah Bernhardt, Rev. Dr. J. Saunders Reed, a retired Episcopalian minister, dropped dead in the church house. He had been in favor of the play.

LIPKOWSKA, TO TAKE ANTI-THIN CURE AT HARVARD

LYDIA LIPKOWSKA

PROFESSOR HUSE WEDS TEACHER

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31.—Professor Charles Phillips Huse of Harvard and Miss Florence Bigelow Johnson, until recently a teacher in the Wyoming School here, are married to-day at the home of Miss Johnson's parents, No. 1600 North Eighth street.

Dr. Huse has been a student and teacher at Harvard since 1900. He holds three degrees from the institution, a bachelor of arts degree in 1904, a master of arts degree in 1905, a doctor of philosophy degree in 1907.

He specialized in economics at an early period in his college career and won the attention of Professor Taussig, Harvard's leading economist, by his masterly theses. His most remarkable achievement was being elevated to a doctorate in philosophy as a result of economic researches after only two years of preparation.

Of wide interest was a recent compilation of data he made regarding the finances of the city of Boston. These are on file at the Harvard library along with many of his other writings.

For the last three years he has been lecturer in "Economics 1," the freshman economics course, alternating with Professor Taussig, where he has resided at No. 41 Evergreen avenue.

SHEEHAN 82; 74 FOR DEPEW

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 31.—There were but two changes to-day in the twelfth ballot for United States Senate. In the Senate Hot Senator White of Schenectady switched from Seymour Van Sandtvoord to John D. Kernan and Assemblyman Meyer of Schenectady also changed his vote from Vansantvoord to Kernan.

The Joint Assembly adjourned at 12:25. The sport of John D. Kernan of Utica to nine votes marked the twelfth joint ballot to-day. Mr. Vansantvoord received no votes. The total vote cast was 186—94 being necessary for a choice.

The vote was distributed as follows: Sheehan, 82; Depew, 74; Shepard, 10; Parkey, 1; Littleton, 3; Glynn, 3; Kernan, 9; O'Brien, 2; Sulzer, 1; Taggart, 1.

MRS. YERKES WINS RIGHT TO FILE SUIT

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—A decision rendered by Judge Coxe in the United States Court sustains the demurrer of Mrs. Adelaide Yerkes to the complaint of Louis S. Owsley, executor of the will of her husband, Charles T. Yerkes, in the action of the court clears the way for Mrs. Yerkes's suit to declare void the sale of the Chicago traction stocks which was part of her husband's estate.

MILL LEASED BY SILK CO.

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 31.—The Lehigh Valley Silk Company of South Bethlehem, Pa., has leased a vacant mill building in the town, and is soon to establish a branch here. The South Bethlehem mill employs 700 hands.

The Family Upstairs—Dingbat Was Not Familiar with His Parrot's Voice — By Herriman

SOMEONES AT THE DOOR. DEAR
SOUNDS LIKE THAT CRAZY POLL PARROT OF THAT FAMILY UPSTAIRS TO ME I KNOW HIS VOICE.
OH MR DINGBAT, HE'S DINGBAT
WELL LETS OPEN THE DOOR AND SEE IF IT IS STAND ASIDE WOMAN I'LL NOT OPEN THE DOOR AND HAVE THAT FOOL BIRD WALK IN AND GIVE ME THE LAUGH HE'S DONE IT TOO OFTEN BEFORE
OPEN SIR, I HAVE A WORD WITH YOU
I STILL THINK IT IS NOT A PARROT THAT MY ANGEL
GET OUT OF THERE BEAT IT
YES BUT I AM STILL OF THE SAME OPINION THAT IT WAS NOT A PARROT'S VOICE
SO MY LADY DON'T YOU CALL PARROTS WARBLE, WHEN I HEAR IT, BUT AT ME THAT IT UNREAL I MICHED OU THE DOOR ? COURSE HE DID

$4,000 SULPHUR FIRE IN A CAR

A cigarette or a spark from a pipe is believed to have been the cause of the sudden ignition of ten tons of milk sulphur in a freight car in the Warren avenue yard of the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine road to-day. Three or four workmen were in the car, loading the sulphur into bags, when it burst into flames. They leaped out of side doors in a hurry. When firemen arrived suffocating smoke was pouring out of the car in dense clouds. The flames could not get into the car because of it. They were driven back every time they made a charge. They had to fight the fire at some distance.

The sulphur is owned by the Underwriters' Salvage Company. The damage done to car and freight is estimated at $4,000.

Caught in Molten River.

From an American beacher, who has laboriously traversed the west shore of Lake Taal, it is learned that five small villages have been swept away by the tidal wave and that hundreds of the inhabitants perished.

When the eruption began last Saturday the volcanic island of Taal suddenly sank five feet, and a wall of water four feet high swept over the shore a mile inland, destroying all in its immediate path.

Many of those who escaped the tidal wave were caught in the flood of molten masses that poured over the crater and formed a horrible display. At almost the same time came a terrific electrical storm with deafening thunder. A constabulary relief reports that twelve persons were drowned and one killed by lightning at Talisay, and three were drowned at Lemery.

The eruption was at its worst yesterday. The terrific explosions in the air frightened many of the constabulary. The Manila Observatory reports a total of 332 shocks, and these threw the natives in Manila into a state of panic. The shocks were felt 100 miles from the volcano.

The rain of mud and stones continued to-day, although there was no wind and the sky was cloudless. The hills around Lake Taal are the refuge of hundreds of natives, who have built themselves rude shelters. The Government is rushing relief trains to the scene. Fatalities continue.

MRS. SCHENK NEAR DEATH BY DROWNING

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 31.—Mrs. Laura F. Schenk, whose trial on the charge of poisoning her millionaire husband ended in the disagreement of the jury, to-day had a narrow escape from death in the flood-swollen Ohio River, when a skiff in which she was rowing upset.

Mrs. Schenk is staying at the home of Mrs. Lasch on Wheeling Island, one of the residence sections of the city which was cut off to-day by the flood. She was attempting to row to the mainland when the flood whirled her craft around and capsized it. Mrs. Schenk had disappeared under the water, but several men who had witnessed the accident rescued her in a semi-conscious state.

GETS ANOTHER YEAR TO LONG JAIL RECORD

John Doyle, forty-five, whose only address has been "just-any-old-place," during the last twenty-six years, was sentenced to add on another year to his record to-day by Judge Bennett, in the Municipal Court. Doyle admitted he had served more than a quarter of a century behind the bars. He entered the store of Henry Siebert, No. 52 Eliot street, last night and told the storekeeper that somebody was stealing his sleigh. When Siebert returned he missed $18 from his till.

MRS. PEABODY'S PLAY PRODUCED

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Josephine Preston Peabody's (Mrs. Lionel Marks) four-act play, "The Piper," based on the rat-catcher poem, was produced at the New Theatre. Edith Wynne Matthison, in green hose and motley jacket, played the Piper; Dora Jesslyn had the role of the ingenue Barbara, Frank Gillmore played the Sword Eater, Jacob Wendell, Jr., the soft-hearted Cheat-the-Devil; Olive Oliver played Verquiker; John Tansey the lame Jan; Lee Baker, the Burgomaster, and Ben Johnson Kuf, the Syndic.

WOULD PAY FIRE CHIEF'S WIDOW $3,500

Ex-Fire Commissioner Benjamin W. Wells, L. H. Rhoades, J. P. McKissock of Lowell and others appeared before the Committee on Cities to-day for a bill to authorize the city of Boston to pay to Hannah Chenwell, widow of William F. Chenwell, late chief of the fire department, the balance of his salary to the remainder of the year which he would have received had he lived. Former Representative David Mancovitz of Boston introduced the bill. Chief Chenwell's salary was $3,500, and he lived but two weeks after the commencement of the year.

EAST LIVERPOOL LEADS DOUBLES

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 31.—East Liverpool, Ohio, took the lead in the doubles event in the bowling tournament to-day, defeating Chicago in the second shift of two men teams. W. Hartley and H. Seiler piled up a total of 1,240-17 pins better than the week set by Erickson and Magnuson Saturday. Hartley proved the man to go for the big counts, a mark of 604 greeting his efforts. Seiler got 562.

CERTAIN SIGNS OF SPRING FROM VARIOUS POINTS

WINSTED, Ct., Jan. 31.—John Green of Woodbury killed a black snake measuring three feet three inches. Charles Bradford of Meadow street got the first 1911 mosquito bite. He killed the skeeter and has both it and the bite to show he's a truthful man. Mrs. Carl Steenkel of Norfolk found snowdrops in her garden in full bloom.

NEWPORT, Jan. 31.—A few robins were heard at Ochre Point to-day and the cries of a flock of wild geese were heard last night going north.

DALLAS, Jan. 31.—To-day was the hottest January day on record in Texas. The maximum temperature was 88 degrees. Warm weather has prevailed for four days.

400 ARE DEAD IN EARTHQUAKE

MANILA, Jan. 31.—Mount Taal still was in eruption to-day and the island of Luzon continually was rocked by earthquake tremors. At least four hundred persons have perished as a result of the eruptions of the crater, which caused a tidal wave. At noon to-day 337 shocks had been recorded.

Half a dozen villages were westwoyed by the tidal wave.

The rain of mud and stones has fallen on villages within a radius of twenty miles, and the natives are fleeing from their homes. In Manila, which is only thirty-four miles from the volcano, there is great uneasiness, particularly among the native population, many of whom are preparing to leave.

STUDENT LOSES DIVORCE CASE

After considering the evidence for one week Judge Waite, in the Suffolk Divorce Court, to-day dismissed the libel of Harry E. Davey, now a student at the Boston University Law School, who wedded in secret October 14, 1905, in Taunton, Miss Edna R. Armstrong. In the secret romance it was agreed that they should not live together as husband and wife until after the youthful husband had completed his studies at Williams College.

After the ceremony the student continued his studies and the bride resumed her employment as stenographer.

Her home is at No. 10 Clinton avenue, Brockton, and she is now employed as a stenographer by Cahoon, Klugman & Swift of No. 240 Montello street.

It was alleged by the husband that his bride deserted him, that she informed him in letters that she would have nothing to do with him.

After hearing the case Judge White said: "This young man apparently attempted to tie up the wife and keep her away from everybody of her own age."

MANY REALTY SALES REPORTED

Among the many properties reported sold to-day was that at No. 62 Spring street, corner of No. 55 Allen street, West End, comprising a three-story brick house and 1,100 square feet of land, sold by Peter H. Siegal for $13,700, which has been purchased by Sarah L. Berman from Peter H. Siegal. The land is rated for $4,400.

In the South End, five four-story brick tenements occupied by a dwelling and a store, at Nos. 1 to 9 Bradlee court, has been sold by Nicholas Sterlopoulos to Isidore Lipkowski of New York, and reported to-day as a total valuation of $50,000, of which $6,000 is the rating on the land. A tract of land on which the building stands. The sale was negotiated through the office of Houghton & Dodd of the Easton Building.

Charles Jenkins has sold to Albert S. Johnson a lot of land on Minot street, off Beacon street, Back Bay, containing 8,850 square feet and rated for $4,100.

Also in the South End parcel sold is that at No. 163 Tyler street, one unit street, comprising a brick house and 1,405 square feet of land, at auction for $6,200, which has been purchased by the Alonzo L. Warren estate from Sarah E. Noyes. The land is rated for $5,200.

George B. Griffiths has sold to Frederic D. Sparrow the brick and frame buildings and 3,500 square feet of land at Nos. 19-21 Mount Vernon street, Charlestown, for $7,000. The land is rated for $1,400, of which $1,000 is on the land and a lot of land on a nearby proposed street, off Harrison avenue, containing 4,953 square feet and rated for $1,700.

Ira Rodgers, the stone house and 2,513 square feet of land, at the corner of Chelsea and Sigsbee streets, 2 land for $9,000, have been sold to Peter H. Siegal to Sarah B. Berman, and the same grantor has sold to Sarah B. Berman the brick dwelling house and 1,280 square feet of land on Harwood street, between Chelsea and Sigsbee streets, Roxbury, all taxed for $6,000 of which $1,000 is on the land.

Annie M. Eddy has sold to Bert W. Gove the frame house and 5,047 square feet of land at Nos. 15 Hooker street, corner of Hazell street, Brighton, all taxed for $4,400.

Eva E. Bradford has sold to Margaret Brown the frame house and 3,000 square feet of land at Nos. 15-17 Bowdoin street, corner of Hobart street, Brighton, taxed for $2,700.

The frame house and 3,101 square feet of land at No. 10 Hartland street, between Silver and Boston streets, Dorchester, all taxed for $5,000, have been sold by Patrick Smith to Joseph Sullivan.

WAIVES EXAMINATION ON A THEFT CHARGE

F. Winsor Ball of Pembroke street, Medford, was arraigned in the Municipal Court to-day on a charge of stealing $1,000 from W. H. Hallbrook of No. 138 Lincoln street, where Ball was bookkeeper. The charges covered a period of two years. Ball waived examination and was held in $5,000 for the grand jury.

MERGER HAS HEARING.

The proposed consolidation of the Boston & Northern and the Old Colony street railway companies under a single company was considered by the legislative Committee on Street Railways to-day. P. F. Sullivan, president of both companies, and Bentley W. Warren, their attorney, appeared in favor of the bill.

MME. RABINOFF WINS SUCCESS

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Marie Zazulio Rabinoff, the latest rival of Melba, Tetrazzini and Lipkowska for coloratura honors, came from Nebraska by way of Chicago and won a large and critical Boston audience in "Rigoletto" last night.

Most of the subscribers had never heard of Mme. Rabinoff, which was not strange since she has only been Madame Rabinoff for less than a year. They were rather inclined to consider it impertinent for a young woman without reputation to appear on a subscription night in a part as important as Gilda. And they looked with suspicion upon Western persons who make claims for operatic pre-eminence.

Therefore, it is really extraordinary that the singer so moved this audience that it broke into the middle of the "Cara nome" with loud and ill-timed applause, and so disturbed the young lady that she finished nervously, and neglected to take the E in altissimo to which Boston audiences have been accustomed on the end of this aria.

Miss Rabinoff is not a lyric soprano endeavoring to sing coloratura roles. She is a true coloratura soprano. Her voice is cold, passionless and flute like, with that brilliant, diamond-like hardness which makes trilling and passage work a delight to the ear.

Considering her operatic inexperience this singer has an excellent technique, her tones are produced easily, her voice is flexible and pliable. And, best of all, it is not a thin, peeping voice, but an organ of considerable quantity and with possibilities of great development.

On the other hand her recitative is often expressionless and her acting still amateurish in character. She is still a very young artist, but her future should be splendid.

Constantino was in excellent voice and spirits, having quite recovered from his encounter with a horse in "The Girl of the Golden West," last Friday.

Rabinoff as "Rigoletto" was impressive histrionically and sang magnificently. The performance went with spirit under the direction of Wallace Goodrich.

JEWISH JUNIORS DANCE.

The second of a series of dancing parties, given by the Boston Section, Council Jewish Juniors, was held last evening at Howe Hall. Two hundred members and their friends were present. Each Summer the Juniors, under the direction of Mrs. G. S. Harris, bring hundreds of kiddies into the country. The proceeds of the series of dances will go to swell the fund used for this purpose.

MACLAURIN TALKS ON "TECH" ISLAND PLAN

President Richard C. Maclaurin to-day gave out the following comment upon the plan proposed by the Board of Metropolitan Improvements to locate the Massachusetts Institute of Technology upon an artificial island in the Charles River Basin:

"It is an evidence of the good will of the community toward the institute that so many are ready to make suggestions toward a solution of its site problems.

"It seems to me that the merits of this island scheme should be discussed entirely apart from its outside connection with the Institute of Technology.

"When the citizens determine that an island in the river basin is desirable, it will be time to consider seriously the advantages as a location for the Institute of Technology.

"The island proposition was embodied in a report made by the board to the Legislature. Regarding the island, the report says:

"Scheme A is for the construction of an island for recreation purposes only, to contain 172,000 square feet of land. With Scheme B the island is to contain 1,000,000 square feet of land, a medium-sized island with provision for recreation and also a site for the Institute of Technology or for other purposes."

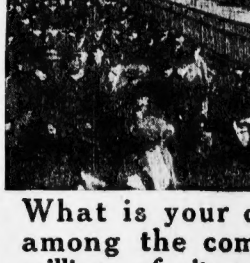
SLOAN'S LINIMENT

Prices, 25c., 50c., and $1.00.



What is your chance among the competing millions of city workers?

No matter how hard you work, the barriers against you are almost impassable. Marketing is so expensive, rent is so high, that most men just make a bare living until they die. There's only one solution for you—turn to farming.

But turn in the right direction. Come to the Gulf Coast the richest region on the map, with the most delightful climate in the world—a section that offers all the conveniences to which you are accustomed—which will supply all your needs and yet leave you with a surplus at the end of the year.

C. C. Pugh of Mercedes paid for his farm with his first crop of onions.

He purchased a stretch of raw land, cleared it and planted Bermuda onions.

His whole cost of growing, including crates, was 38 cents a bushel. He sold his product f. o. b. at $1.15 a bushel, making a net profit of $370 an acre.

The Gulf Coast has only begun its development; there is plenty of land to be had just like Mr. Pugh bought.

You can duplicate his success and not only make back your whole investment before the year is out, but live like a lord on the delicacies raised right in your own garden and put money in the bank to boot.

It won't cost you much to visit this country and judge for yourself. Every first and third Tuesday of each month you can purchase a round-trip Landseekers ticket to any point in the Gulf Coast country of Texas, from Chicago at $30.00, and from St. Louis or Kansas City at $25.00.

Through standard and tourist sleeping cars are operated by the Frisco Lines from either of these points.

GARDNER AND FRANK KLAUS AGAIN MEET AT ARMORY TO-NIGHT

MATHEWSON DECLARES RUSTLERS LOOK GOOD

By SID WHIPPLE.

Connie Mathewson and "Big Chief" Myers are certainly having the time of their lives doing the Theophan. Neither looks as though he felt any great physical strain as a result of exerting on the hands every afternoon and evening for twenty-six minutes and something like $100 a week in cold coin.

It sure is "easy money." They are rank outsiders at Keith's that they draw the best dressing room of the house. The only thing that seems to bother the "Big Chief" is that there is a $50 penalty for chewing, and he has to forego that pleasure.

I saw the men in their dressing room before the show yesterday, and during their act. It was great, especially the dressing room scene. However, I managed to get a little dope out of Matty on things in general and baseball in particular, as well as some dope on acting by his side partner. In the course of the conversation, I found out that Matty has some ideas about running a ball team, and was willing to tell a few of them.

In the first place, he believes that the Rustlers can be built up and thinks that Tenney is the man to do it.

Christy Lauds Tenney.

"Tenney is going about it in the right way," he said, "and knows that the best way to build up a team is to develop material rather than buy it. As a matter of fact, you can't buy baseball stars. Nobody is willing to sell a star, and the best deals are made with the better of the minor leagues."

I asked him what he thought of Shafer, the New York man who very early became a Rustler.

"Take it from me" he said, all the while rubbing his face with grease paint, "Shafer is a comer. I see that that deal which Shean didn't go through. I am glad to see that the Boston National League fans have decided to put all the power into the manager's hands. The clubs that will persists are managed by managers and not by executive committees. That wonder-manager Mac has started out best ago. It didn't prove a success, and never will."

Will the Giants win the pennant this year? I asked him.

Matty smiled. "I don't know. I don't want to say they will," he replied, "but they have a good chance. As a matter of fact, I see the best thing in the world for a team to win a pennant these days. With the post series to be played, it means that if a pennant is not cinched on the championship series they are called a bunch of dubs, and that is worse than if they finished second or third. Then too, if the fans once get a pennant mad-ness, they aren't satisfied unless they have one all the time.

"The 'Big Chief' wasn't silent all the time, by any means. His opinions were coincided with the great pitchers' views. Meanwhile the chief was getting on his turkey feather head-dress and sweating his face with red paint. Christy began to collect his chairs, scarves, gun, tailor, and the red shirt in which he appears in the last scene of their noisiness, "A Rose of the Potomac." Then came the call to Mike to the stage.

I arrived in front in time to see Mike Tinny, who comes from through the skit, dance a jig and call out in terrible accents: "Matty, where are you, Matty?" Matty was buckling up his suit and waiting for his call-out. He got it, and Mike, he didn't take the hint, and instead of the pitcher, it was the Big Chief who came through the doorway of the "Club House" with a grand and noble entrance to Mike's delight.

Miss Tinny and Mr. Myers pulled off a few wheezes, that had a tinge of grey about them, but were caught the "fancy" in the audience. As soon as the spectators began to laugh at the antiquated jokes Mr. Myers pearled, and from then on it was plain sailing.

Here's How They Cop the Coin.

Miss Tinny—Oh, Mr. Myers, are you a regular Indian?

Big Chief—Well, fairly regular. (Applause.)

Miss Tinny—Mr. Mathewson, do you have to have curves in your business?

Matty—Certainly, just the same as you have to have them. (More applause.)

Miss Tinny—What do you signal when you want a high ball?

Myers—I put fifty cents on the table. (Still more applause.)

Great! Well, I should say so! Matty says it's the easiest money he ever made, and I am inclined to believe him. He says a good living for working with his arm and take off the grease paint, and there again, I have to agree with him. As a bauble of it is, the boys have just as much fun as the audience.

How An Idea Sold Hosiery

A new idea will often market effectively a staple. In fact, the goods may be the little different from others, but the selling idea which presents them in a new and interesting way will market them.

Consider Hosiery. It has been sold for years with and without a reinforced heel and a reinforced toe, yet the way in which a firm marketed its hosiery was so new that it soon beaten a path to the customers along which numbers of imitators are now fast making their way.

The man who organized the company had imagination, and embodied the idea for the

ATTELL HURT; BOUT HERE OFF

The match between Pal Moore and Abe Attell scheduled for the Armory Club a week from to-night has been called off. Attell's right arm was broken in his bout with Tommy Kilbane at Cleveland last night, and as a result he will be out of the game for some time to come. He may be crippled even for life.

The Armory Club's matchmaker is at work trying to secure an attraction of as equal an importance. Announcement of this will be made as soon as the match can be arranged.

Attell's bout with Kilbane, which was held at the Eagle's Club at Cleveland, came to an end in the fourth round. It was to have been a 10-round go, and Attell had had all the better of the Cleveland boy on points when the accident happened.

Kilbane led and Attell countered, the two going into a clinch. As they broke they fell. Kilbane's weight going on Attell's arm. Kilbane arose at once, but Attell was scarcely able to arise. He informed the referee that he was hurt and physicians were summoned.

An examination showed that Attell had suffered an intercapular fracture of the right shoulder, which may cripple him for life and cause his retirement from the ring.

The Post this morning publishes a dispatch from Philadelphia in connection with the cancelling of the Attell-Moore fight, which on the face of things would look like one Mr. Jawn O'Brien of Philadelphia. Here is the story, so you can enjoy the laugh.

Philadelphia, Jan. 30.—Philadelphia Jack O'Brien's signed and sealed refusal to the published agreement that Abe Attell, featherweight champion, was to box Pal Moore a 12-round bout at the Armory A. A. in Boston Friday, January 7, Jack asserted that he has a signed contract with Abe Attell to meet Patsy Kline, of Newark, for a 15-round bout at the American Athletic Club, which Jack runs, in his city on the night of February 8, and that the contract contains a clause which precludes Attell from meeting anyone in the ring during that date.

The Attell-Kline bout at the American Club on the night to be the semi-final to the battle between Knockout Brown of New York and Ad Wolgast, featherweight champion. Joe Coster, who was to have met Tommy O'Toole in another bout, is ill in New York, and his place was taken by Jimmy Carroll, the sensational featherweight from the Pacific coast.

STOP BOUT TO SAVE ROLFE FROM K. O.

NEW BEDFORD, Jan. 31.—Referee Downey stopped the battle between Joe Thomas of California and Billy Rolfe of Boston in the fifth of the scheduled twelve-round go before 1,100 members of the New Bedford A. C., here. The Boston fighter was outclassed, the ruling from the West being far superior in every department of the game.

MEMPHIS FANS HOOT PACKEY M'FARLAND

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 31.—Packey McFarland's defeat in this section of the South was greeted by a storm of disapproval, when in an extra-round bout with Jack Britton of Indiana he failed to gain a knockout or a decision. The referee called it a draw.

McFarland entered the ring in fine fettle, according to the opinion of the ringsiders. Many thought he seemed drawn too fine, which was given as one reason for his poor showing against Britton.

JIM DRISCOLL WINS BOUT, RETAINS TITLE

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Jim Driscoll, the featherweight champion of England, successfully defended his championship in his fight with "Spike" Robson before the National Sporting Club. Driscoll won in the seventh round.

BASKETBALL NEWS NOTES

Captain Tracy of the Oliver Ames High School writes that his team is almost sure of winning the scholastic basketball championship of the State and are willing to meet any high school team that will have an claim on it. They have selected Melrose, Quincy and several other aspirants. He says that the team is composed of Tracy, forward; Hayes, and four of them are among the leading basketball shooters in the State. Jack Hayes is the star of the team, with Gardner Butler, Irving Butler, Tracy and Tracy this sister. Butler, the right forward, has scored over 200 baskets this year, one of the lucky ones being the record of baskets shot by a back with fourteen.

Members of the Singer Crew and Repair Club will hold a social and entertainment in the club rooms, Saturday evening, February 4. A committee in charge consists of Walter Harnden, Frank Hatch, Miss Julia A. Keone and Miss Alice Card. Many basketball fans will attend, as there are many popular players in the Club.

BOSTON DOG LOSES IN ENDURANCE TEST

ROGERS SPRINGS, Tenn., Jan. 31.—Eugene M. a setter owned by Frank Reilly of Philadelphia, was declared champion field dog for 1911, winning in a final heat, over the setter Powhattan, the property of Robert Aiken of Baltimore. The two dogs ran for three hours and seven minutes, both showing style and speed, but excelling their bird-finding ability, but toward the end Powhattan tired and the Philadelphia dog was awarded the title on endurance. The heat was handled by W. Gilbert of Courtland, Miss.

MIGHTY POLE VICTOR OVER BOER WRESTLER

LOWELL, Jan. 31.—Stanislaus Zbyszko, the big Canadian-Polish wrestler, who is visiting from Paul Negard, the "Boer," in a wrestling match held here, to-night, quickly weighed, managed to secure out of and shake off his opponent for thirty-two minutes and thirty seconds from the outset of the bout, put Negard to the mat on a side scissors, preparatory to body hold, pinned both his shoulders down. The second fall came in twelve minutes, when Zbyszko secured a body hold and scissors.

MILLIONAIRE BOXER WINS IN ONE ROUND

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Warren Barbour, the millionaire boxer, who holds the national amateur heavyweight championship, knocked out Joseph Gorenstein of the Knoth Athletic Club, New York, holder of the Metropolitan amateur championship, in less than one round in their bout here.

McGOVERN PUTS IT OVER MONTE ATTELL

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Phil McGovern won a clean decision over Monte Attell in a ten-round bout at the Lenox Athletic Club in Brooklyn. He sent Attell to the floor three times in the first round, and only Attell's fine condition saved him from a knockout.

HOPE STREET SEVEN TO PLAY CHAMPIONS

By winning over Arlington High, Melrose High earned the privilege of meeting the Hope Street High School hockey team of Providence, champion of the Rhode Island Interscholastic League, in a game at the Boston Arena February 10.

WINNER OF READVILLE DERBY BRINGS $50,000

CLEVELAND, Jan. 31.—Allen Winter, 2:06½, the trotting stallion which in 1909 was sold to Louis Wiman of England for $50,000, was purchased to-day by Frank Eaton for one of his patrons at Moscow, Russia. The purchase price was not made public. Allen Winter won the trotting Derby at Readville a few years ago.

SPORTS of all SORTS BY RILEY

IT'S TOO BAD THAT THE SCHEDULED bout between Abe Attell and Pal Moore at the Armory A. A. next Tuesday night has been called off. A whole lot of boxing fans were making preparations to see the battle, knowing that it would be a fast one scrap. Attell outpointed Moore in their recent bout in New York, and many fans here were hopeful of seeing Moore put it all over the Frey Abe when they met here. That stiff of Jawn O'Brien saying that Attell could not have boxed here on the date set because he had signed a contract to box Patsy Kline at Philadelphia, on February 8, is all rot. If Attell had not broken his arm at Cleveland last night he would have been here.

ALVIE KING, WHO DABBLES IN everything in the sporting line from pugilism to racing, has turned up in London. He was in the ringside when Bill Lang fanned Patsy Officer Curran before Hugh Mc Intosh's club, and wires that he cannot see either man as a Snider. Alvie forwarded the ornate program for that show. It has a picture of the principals as well as those of Malinda, Referee Lonnie Corrie and Secretary James Jolward Britt, and contains the following announcement, whatever it may mean:

"Tonight, and nightly during the season, Hugh D. McIntosh will present a limited number of intimate dinners, followed by a round of intra tunnies under exact English Queensberry rules, with the best exponents of all the fighting nations of American heroes."

JAMES E. BRITT, Secretary.

THE ATTEMPTS TO BELITTLE THE ability of Zbyszko, the Polish wrestler, are very foolish. He is a master of the art, knows every tail of which the game boasts, and is the greatest kind of an opponent. We have seen them all upon the mat since the days of William Muldoon, Duncan C. Ross, Captain J. C. Daly, H. M. Durfee and Matsada, the marvelous Jap and this visitor from other shores by the name of Chris Christensen, and Zbyszko is to Frank Gotch. It is in very poor sports manship to throw mud at foreign conquerors, especially when they come over so far from deserved, and written apparently by those knowing very little of the wrestling game.

THE WAY THOSE MELROSE AND Arlington schoolboys danced the pad around the Arena last evening. The lads showed great knowledge of the finer points of the game, covered their nobs well and gave every moment from middle to whistle in both halves, a very creditable exhibition run for the private money in hockey. The championship game will be played here in order this Winter has been astonishing.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON AND CHIEF Myers will "put over" with the Boston Braves to-night by pitching on their ball at Paul Revere Hall. "the newsies" helped make Christy famous, and he's going to show his appreciation. Out of the proceeds of the ball Christy will send two of their number to Harvard.

BOSTON HONKERS ARE OVER IN New York in goodly numbers, and may they all bring something back that is the equal of the game given from the mid-Winter horse auction. There was never a better chance to buy speed, and the driving clubs of Greater Boston should reap the benefit.

IN THE NINTH ROUND OF THE Al-Reo-Hayes fight at the Hyde Park A. C. action was so slow that one man yelled, "Fight! Fight! Fight!"

"Where to?" came a quick retort from across the ring.

GARDNER PICKED TO BEAT KLAUS

A clever lotter and a "clean-cut" pug is up at the Armory Club tonight in a bout scheduled for six seven-minute rounds. The boxer is Jimmy Gardner of Lowell; his opponent, Frank Klaus of Pittsburg. There is every indication that the bout will go the carded distance.

The talent to-day made Gardner the favorite. Those who profess to be real good at dopping out the winners said that Gardner would win right handily if he is in the same condition as he was when he last faced Klaus. George Engle, manager of the Pittsburg lad—and a few others around town—could see nothing to it but Klaus.

Here is what Engle springs to-day about his charge: "I have brought Klaus from Pittsburg in the best of shape, and I expect him to beat Gardner good the time. He is getting good and fast. Klaus is a great fighter, with the German, and thinks one can beat him to great shape by getting there. Klaus is no set-up, everything hard, and looks good."

Gardner, who is the idol of the boys at the men Klaus won the first very easy at Lynn, but is in condition to-day. He is going to put up a fight that will go down in the history of the Mechanics Building. If should be a hot fight to-night. Both are out to put a decision on the scrap and not to cop a decision on a technicality which means the "N. O." system that the best one is that it will go the limit.

There will be lots of money wagered on the fight. Down town to-day there were a few good sized bets made. Good judges think that Gardner will win, and it was a good take a chance bet to take a bet on Klaus.

Hooper Dustin and Kid Thomas meet in the Armory A. A. ring, Monday, Mc Grory and Jim Powers of Charlestown clash in the other bout of the evening, and Tom Foley do the entertaining act in the semi-final. Foley is a clever boy, and looks like a big house, and four fast bouts.

BOXING NEWS AND GOSSIP

At Kaufmann, the giant California, is now in New York looking for trouble. The chances are that no effort will be made by Promoters Jack Johnson and Tex Rickard to get the big fellow into the ring. Kaufmann, of Philadelphia, the latter part of last week, and the Quaker City boy got his from Jeannette against the fastest opponent he has met. Kaufmann is a big fellow, and probably will be a hard one to beat.

Patsy Flynn, the pride of the East End, who has been training for his bout with Jack Crafford, has already put on pounds. It has been decided that the bout will be a 15-round affair. Crafford, California is a tough customer, and has been training hard for the bout. Flynn has been training for the bout with Dustin, but has decided to meet Hooper at 135 pounds at Pawtucket.

Montana Jack and Dan Sullivan, who have been matched to box six rounds at the Armory A. A. next week, have at last landed. They will meet at 125 pounds, and Jack will have to be careful. Saturday evening while Jack will fight Jeff Clark at Lynn, Sullivan will box Jimmy Powers.

Matt Baldwin, the popular Boston Bill scrapper, is training hard for his bout with Jack Dillon at Providence next week. Baldwin is going to do more than go the limit. He is going to show his opponents that he is a fighter, and one of them is Dillon. Baldwin has been training with Jack O'Keefe, the Philadelphian, who recently sprang a surprise on the boxing fans of Boston by knocking Jeannette to coma by Boston and Johnny Wallace to the Dreamland. Reports say that O'Keefe is a real good boy.

Jimmy Brooks, Boston has the scalp of Jimmy Stanley, the English bantamweight champion, in his belt right now, and Jimmy would like to see a meeting between Jimmy and the Jew Jersey boy.

Andrew Morris and Joe Thomas would make a great bout for the fans of Providence. They meet next Saturday at the Auditorium.

Ranger says that Sandy Ferguson is going to retire. It is a fearful that the rumor is too good to be true.

ROOSEVELT TO RUN AT B. A. A.

Kermit Roosevelt, son of the ex-President, will seek honors on the cinder path.

He is attending Harvard and must have shown the manager of the track team some speed, for he has been entered in the mile run at the B. A. A. games February 15.

Two of Yale's noted football stars are to compete in the games. J. H. Kilpatrick will be seen in the shotput and quarter back Howe will try in the forty-yard handicap. Chisholm, Intercollegiate champion hurdler, has been entered for 440 in that event. He is the lad who has won the hurdles for two years at the B. A. A. games in a row.

HARVARD SENDS BUT FOUR MEN TO GAMES

Harvard has decided to send but four men to compete in the annual indoor track meet of the Irish Americans A. C. at Mechanics Building next Saturday night. Coach Foster will run the low hurdles only. Coach Donovan not wishing to push him too hard after his recent illness. Foster has been getting a real fine workout, however, and will be in shape to do himself credit in the high hurdles, while A. D. Barker will run the 300 yards. Barker has won many points in the Yale meet last Spring and Early of three men are stroke in their fast mile relay team which defeated Yale and Cornell last year, and will take part in the games tonight.

ALGER-HAYES BOUT AT HYDE PARK DRAW

George Alger of Cambridge boxed ten rounds to a draw with Grover Hayes of Philadelphia at last night's show at the Hyde Park A. C. Alger led the first four rounds, and from that until the tenth it was even. In the last round Hayes rallied in it up and was the stronger of the two at the finish.

In the other bouts Young Cohen of the West End got the decision over Jimmy Stanley of South End in three rounds. Jack White of Cambridge knocked out "Dutch" Harvard in three rounds. In the fourth round, and Rogee O'Brien of South Boston was given the decision over Jerry McAuliff.

YATTER-LAURIE IN MATCH GAME

By ED COGSWELL.

When Yatter concedes everything asked by Bennie Laurie by making a match to decide the billiard championship of New England, and all that now remains is for the pugilistic ex-get together, pass the stogy cigars for the side wagers on the result, set the dates and arrange other minor particulars.

Yatter informs the AMERICAN he will play Laurie the 1,000 points the latter wants to make and will give one or more consecutive evenings, at 18.2 balkline, for the privilege of playing the match for side, the gate receipts to be divided 65 per cent. to the winner and 35 per cent. Georges Carter for referee, and that the match be played in the Hub, which seems to be all ready for match games.

Yatter has received word from the public billiard rooms, under the plaza eighth avenue and Forty-second street, that at Doyle's place in New York, every manner of billiard matches may be pulled off.

There is no doubt Laurie will come to the front with a big bank roll to back his match with to a finish. Irving Yatter's friends are now subscribing contributions to bring any possible bets that may be offered out readily into the receipts, which in this case is avoided. The players getting all of the gate for themselves.

As was predicted by those knowing Hal, the youthful amateur billiard expert of Malden has cleaned up the Greater Mystic Valley League without losing a game. Continuing his winning streak he easily won the league title's record in one to should well be proud of.

There is a home handicap tournament in progress at the Monroe Highlands Club now, at which the players in that vicinity are entered.

Big Change in Bill

By KENNETT HARRIS

I NEVER had much use for Bill; a tough old pill
I thought him. Still,
I wouldn't bear him no ill will;
I'd try to make him decent
We none of us is such great shakes.
Most of us makes a few mistakes,
And yesterday I heard, at Jake's,
Some news he's got quite recent.
No, Bill, he ain't as black as pitch,
The news is that he's struck it rich.

Bill has his p'ints, we can't deny.
He'd steal and lie
And not half try,
And look a fellow in the eye,
Particularly bold and brazen.
But land! I know that I'm no saint.
None of us ain't.
We're all a taint;
The devil's black is mostly paint,
And bill ain't had much raisin'.
But he's got p'ints, and good ones, which
We'll notice, now he's struck it rich.

Bill may have been a trifle mean. His hands ain't clean
As some I've seen.
I've knowed the time I wasn't keen,
Not awful keen, to meet him.
But that's all past and gone with me.
It's got to be,
Because, you see,
I'm chairman of the comp-tee
Appointed for to greet him.
We'll welcome him with bands and sich,
For, somehow, Bill has struck it rich.

Foiled! A Telephonic Tragedy

CHARACTERS: MR. HARRY RICHARDS. MISS GRACE HAZLETT. CENTRAL OPERATOR

MR. RICHARDS—Hello, central. Give me one-o-o-four Brookline.

CENTRAL—Brookline, One-four-o-o.

R. (clicking receiver violently)—No, no, no. Central!

CENTRAL—Here's your party.

MAN'S VOICE—Well?

R.—I don't want you.

VOICE—Well, what did you ring me for?

R.—I didn't ring you. Central got the wrong number.

VOICE—Why don't you give your numbers plainly? Speak up, don't gargle. (Rings off.)

R.—(Again clicking receiver)—Central! I asked for one-o-o-four, not one-four-o-o.

CENTRAL—Excuse it, please. One-o-o-four Brookline.

R.—That's right. (Bells ring violently in his ear.) Stop that! You are the limit.

WOMAN'S VOICE—What's that?

R.—(Apologetically)—Oh! is that you, Miss Hazlett? I beg your pardon. I was speaking to the telephone girl.

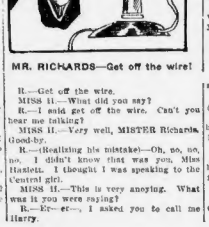
MISS H.—My, how rough your voice sounded! I didn't know you could speak so harshly.

R.—(Overcome with confusion)—I-I-I am sorry, but these telephone girls are so exasperating sometimes.

Miss H.—Well, I'll forgive you this time, Mr. Richards.

R.—Why do you call me Mr. Richards? Why not Harry? Don't you think we have known each other long enough for that?

CENTRAL—Waiting?



MR. RICHARDS—Get off the wire!

R.—Get off the wire.

MISS H.—What did you say?

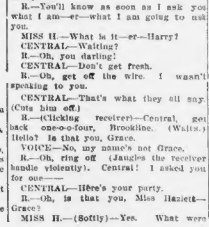
R.—I said get off the wire. Can't you hear me talking?

MISS H.—Very well, MISTER Richards. Good-by.

R.—(Realizing his mistake)—Oh, no, no, no. I didn't know that was you, Miss Hazlett. I thought I was speaking to the Central girl.

MISS H.—This is very annoying. What was it you were saying?

R.—Er—er—, I asked you to call me Harry.



CENTRAL—Waiting?

MISS H.—Why?

R.—Well—er—Because—because I want to tell you something most important.

MISS H.—But why should I call you Harry?

R.—You'll know as soon as I ask you what I am—er—what I am going to ask you.

MISS H.—What is it—er—Harry?

CENTRAL—Waiting?

R.—Oh, you darling!

CENTRAL—Don't get fresh.

R.—Oh, get off the wire. I wasn't speaking to you.

CENTRAL—That's what they all say. (Cuts him off.)

CENTRAL—Waiting? (Cuts him off.)

R.—(Clicking receiver)—Central, get back one-o-o-four, Brookline. (Waits.) Hello? Is that you, Grace.

VOICE—No, my name's not Grace.

R.—Oh, ring off. (Jangles the receiver handle violently). Central! I asked you for one——

CENTRAL—Here's your party.

R.—Oh, is that you, Miss Hazlett—Grace?

MISS H.—(Softly)—Yes. What were you going to say, Harry?

MISS HAZLETT—Very Well, MISTER Richards! Good-by!

R.—(In desperation)—Grace, I love you. I love you more than my life. I can't live without you. Will you marry me?

MISS H.—(In agitated tones)—Oh, oh, why did you use the telephone to ask me this?

R.—I apologize—I—I am very sorry, but I couldn't get up my courage to do it any other way. Please won't you forgive me and say that you will marry me? Please?

MISS H.—I—I——

R.—(Intensely agitated)—Yes, yes, you —you?——

CENTRAL—Waiting? (Cuts him off.)

R.—(Nearly frantic—Central! Please, please get back one-o-o-four Brookline.

CENTRAL — One-o-o-four Brookline. (Wires buzz in deafening fashion for a few moments.) One-o-o-four Brookline is busy::

(A deep groan from R. is heard over the wire, and a crash. Then silence.)

CURTAIN.

Smart Spring Colors

ACCORDING to European advices, among shades of a more or less staple character in addition to black so far in vogue for next spring are five main colorings, each with several gradations.

In blues are navy, royal blue, Wilhelmina, and nattier. Grays comprise silver gray, lavender gray, slate and mouse gray. Under browns come golden brown, tobacco brown and coffee brown. Greens include clover leaf, mignonette, and duck green; purples comprise lavender-purple, plum color, and royal purple. As mixtures, black and white, black and gray as well as white and black, form the current variations.

The scale of colors as now viewed by German authorities includes new shades of violet, lavender, purple, ecru, cafe au lait, terra cotta, Russian green, parrot blue and bronze.

For millinery purposes ranges of violet, purple, maize and gray are so far approved, supplemented by lavender, royal blue, narrot blue, pheasant brown and geranium.

Advice to Lovelorn

A MAN'S OWN AFFAIR.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man twenty years old, and am in love with a young lady one year my junior. A short time ago I proposed to her, and have obtained both her's and her parents' consent. I talked this matter over with my father, who, very much to my surprise, objected very strongly on the ground that he wants me to marry one of my own nationality. My father being of a stubborn disposition, I see no way out of this unless I marry without his consent. — A. B.

YOU must marry to please yourself. You are still very young, and it might be well to tell your father that you will wait a year or so, but that if you still love the girl at the end of that time you will marry her.

WILL DO NOTHING RASH

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady eighteen years of age and live with my parents. A young man of twenty wishes to keep steady company with me. He is decidedly very much in love with me, and while I like him very much, I have a number of other gentlemen friends and would prefer to wait a little, as I think I am too young to decide. The young man has threatened to do something rash if I myself unless I accept him.

Dear Miss Fairfax, will you please let me know what to do?

D. M. R.

HE will not do anything rash. It is cowardly to threaten a girl in that way; so do not pay any attention to his threats. Do not go with him unless you care for him; but if you do not want his attentions do not encourage him to hang around.

CHAPTER XXIII.
The Verdict

ELOQUENT and earnest as had been Raymond's impassioned outburst it hardly moved the throng as did the woman's short and broken confession. In the hearts of all men and women who are worthy of the name there is every pity for a fallen woman; but in this case there was something more than that. Pity for the wrecks of vice is often tempered by the instinctive feeling that the lost are mercifully drugged by their own excesses until they are incapable of realizing fully that they have fallen beyond the reach of redemption.

But here there was none of that. In that prayer for her son, every mother in the room heard a mother crying out to her across an unbridgeable gulf—every man knew that the woman's soul was writhing under the torture of seeing herself as she was; and the soft weeping and the pressed lips and shining eyes were eloquent of their emotion.

Even the old President felt the spell, and he was with an effort that he took his eyes off the bowed figure with Raymond bending over it and turned to address the jury. At his first words—delivered in a matter-of-fact "legal" tone—a rustle and stir ran over the benches. It was over.

"Gentlemen of the jury," he said, "you have to answer this question: Is the prisoner guilty of the murder committed on April 3d, on the body of her lover, Frederick Laroque? If the majority of you believe that the prisoner is guilty or not guilty, your verdict will be worded accordingly.

"If the majority of you believe, on the other hand, that there are extenuating circumstances, you are to give your verdict in these words:

"The majority of the jurors believe that there are extenuating circumstances in favor of the prisoner.

"I point out to you that your vote must be a secret one. Kindly withdraw to the jury-room. The court is rising."

As he spoke he rose, accompanied by the other judges and moved toward the door of his private room, opening off the bank." The usher pounded his desk.

"The court is rising!" he repeated in a loud tone. With the shuffling of many feet the throng rose and the hum of conversation filled the room. Escorted by two gendarmes, Jacqueline was taken out to the prisoner's room to await the verdict.

'Made My Father Cry"

Floriot, walking like a drunken man, went out with M. Valmorin to the latter's little office. Noel tried to reach him, but he disappeared before he could cross the court. Dr. Chennel followed him and Raymond suddenly stopped them, returning from the door of the prisoner's room, where he had accompanied the woman.

The big hall was practically deserted. Helene had quickly recovered from her motion in her pride in Raymond, but Rose kept incomunicably and the girl led her out to the open air.

Raymond eagerly seized the hands of his father's friends.

"Do you think she will get off, doctor?" he asked, quickly.

"I hope so," responded the surgeon with an affectionate smile; "and if she does, she may thank you, my boy!"

"Is that so?" he exclaimed, with a pleased little laugh and nervous toss of his head. "I thought I was awfully bad!"

"And I thought you were marvelous!" rejoined Noel, with unmistakable meaning. He was looking curiously at the young man's flushed and handsome face.

"Oh, come now!" protested Raymond. "I mean it. You reached me—and not only me!" he added half to himself.

Raymond shook his hand with hearty gratitude.

"It's awfully good of you to tell me these things," he said, "and I'm mighty proud of one thing! Do you know that I made my father cry? I did, for a fact. 'The Man of Bronze,' some one told me they call him! I managed to glance at him a couple of times, and I'm sure he was crying!"

"Now, that's a success, you know. For a young fellow like me to make the presiding judge of another criminal court cry over his first speech is pretty good, whether the young lawyer is the judge's son or not!

"My, but I was nervous! That poor woman completely upset me. You remember when she called out and nearly fainted?"

The others nodded.

"Yes," said Noel. "You turned around and looked up and spoke to her, I think."

"Exactly!" Raymond rattled on, excitedly. "I put my hand on the edge of the rail and she took hold of it, and pressed it, and—do you know, I forgot all about my speech, and everything else? It's a fact! She looked at me in the most extraordinary way!"

He paused a moment and then went on soberly, with a vague, puzzled look in his dark eyes.

"She drew me toward her, somehow. I don't know how to explain it to you. I wanted to take her in my arms and console her and kiss her—yes, kiss her! Kind of foolish, eh?" he added, with a quick smile. "Queer sort of a lawyer who'd want to kiss his clients, isn't it? But I swear that's what I did want! It was one of the most extraordinary sensations I have ever felt, and it upset me so that I caught myself talking for a full minute without knowing what I was saying. Luckily, I sort of got hold of myself, and—and—I'm almighty glad it's all over. Ah, here comes the President of the Toulouse court!"

Hurried to Sweetheart

His few minutes in M. Valmorin's office had partially restored Floriot's steel nerves. He took a drink of water and gently put aside the prosecutor's solicitous questions, and then he hurried out to find his son, knowing that the boy would feel hurt if he was not among the first to congratulate him. But his white, lined face and haggard eyes bore witness to the terrible suffering of the recent ordeal.

Raymond hastened forward a few steps to meet him.

"Thank you, my boy, thank you!" said Floriot, unsteadily, as he gripped his son's hand. "It was a noble speech!"

Then he dropped wearily into a chair. Raymond stared at him, startled.

"Why, is anything the matter, father?" he cried, stepping quickly over to his side.

Floriot raised his hand as if to motion him away.

"No! Nothing, nothing!" he replied.

"I think Mademoiselle Valmorin wants to speak to you, Raymond," interrupted Noel, suddenly. The young man threw a quick look up toward the benches and saw that Helene had returned and was trying to telegraph him with her eyes. A father's claims must always yield to a lover's, and, with a lingering glance at the figure in the chair, Raymond hurried off to his sweetheart's side.

Noel put his hand under Floriot's arm and drew him off to a corner by the bench, where they were partially hidden, while Dr. Chennel did sentry duty in the background.

"You recognized her, of course? said Floriot, in a low broken voice, without meeting his friend's eye.

Noel nodded, but did not speak.

"There is no doubt about it!" went on his friend. "It is Jacqueline, and this is what she has become! This is my work! Jacqueline! Jacqueline!" he groaned, piteously.

"What are you going to do?" demanded Noel. The effort to control himself made his voice sound hard. Floriot shook his head miserably.

"I don't know," he groaned. "What do you think?"

"It doesn't seem to me," retored Noel, bitterly, "that this is exactly a time for thinking! If she should be convicted, maybe it would be better to let things take their natural course and never let Raymond know who she was. But if she is acquitted, you will have to tell him, and we will have to do what we can to—to—wipe out twenty years!"

Floriot's only reply for a moment was a dry sob. Then:

"How can I tell him—now! God!" he cried, "he will add his curses to hers! I will lose him! I——"

The sharp clang of a bell broke in. Noel started. It was the signal that the court was coming in.

"Already!" he exclaimed. "The jury didn't take long! He hastily gripped his friend's hand, as the door of the President's room opened, and pushed him toward his seat.

"Keep your heart, old man!" he added, kindly. "We'll come through all right!"

CURSES!
I'LL TAKE THEM HOME AS SOUVENIRS CLAUDE, THEY LOOK LIKE HAT PINS!
WHILE MY CLARENCE IS PHONING THE POLICE TIL-LICKENS, MY RIVAL IS AWAY!
NOW TO FIGHT THE CHIEF I MUST LEAVE AWAY!
HE WILL NEVER GET BY ME OR CLEAVES!
THE BARREL OF FLOUR YOU ORDERED CHEF!
XXT FLOUR
HORRORS
HA,HA,HA,HA
BUT I DEFY YOU!
WHO FOILED THEM ALL AND YOU WILL FREEZE TO DEATH ON THIS REFRIGERATOR BEFORE HELP COMES! ROSAMOND, YOU'RE MINE, HA HA, HA!

The villain's attempt to scald Claude and Rosamond with hot coffee having failed, the cur is in very bad. With any brave hero on one side and an indignant chef on the other, he hasn't got much chance to escape. The chef is sore because Desmond wasted all that coffee, which would have retailed at five cents a cup or ten cents a demi-tasse.

Not caring to face the chef's cleaver, Desmond concentrates his attack on Claude and Rosamond. The cover is not at a lady is not what you'd call civilized warfare, but Desmond is at heart a barbarian, and bahin on the genuine Simon pure, anything goes. Fortunately, Rosamond's hat intercepts most of the missiles, and no harm is done.

Now that the villain's ammunition is exhausted, Claude jumps over the counter and tries to get Desmond. Fearing one hero's righteous wrath, Desmond decides to take a chance with the chef. When he feels that cleaver cleaving through his high hat and slicing into his peroxided brain, maybe he'll wish he hadn't been so rash.

If that barrel of flour had been delivered day before yesterday, as the man promised it would be, all might have been well. Desmond would have met the fate he so richly deserves, and Claude and Rosamond would have married and lived happily ever after, as they eventually will, but not until after the curtain falls on the last act of our drama.

But, alas! the barrel of flour arrives just in time to trip the chef, and before he can split the scoundrelly skull of Desperate Desmond. The villain are the barrel coming and jumps over it, while Claude, who is not so quick on the think, is going to be bowled over lose the chef. That will give Desmond a chance to do his worst.

The worst the villain can think of for the moment is to lock Claude up in the ice box to die a slow and lingering death by refrigeration. That being done, he will probably attempt the kidnap Rosamond. That's what he usually does after he has disposed of our hero. To-morrow's pictures will positively appear to-morrow.

The Family Martyr

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THERE is always one member in every family who is the self-constituted family martyr.

It is usually a woman, because men don't take kindly to martyrizing. Unselfishness is not man's "long suit."

The family martyr always gives up everything and makes the rest of the family appear monsters of selfishness.

Her apparent unselfishness is, in reality, the highest form of selfishness.

It makes her ill to ride backward, but she insists on doing so; she is so unselfish.

True Selfishness

She stays at home with the children or with mother time after time and forces her sisters to go. In the eyes of the world they appear extremely selfish; in reality they are quite willing to take their share of giving up, but the family martyr won't let them.

She revels and wallows in unselfishness. If any one were to tell her how supremely selfish she is she would be hurt beyond measure.

"No one appreciates me," she would say sadly. "After all I do for them they say I am selfish."

It is selfish, however, to make others constantly appear in a bad light.

The Parading Martyr

The unselfishness of the family martyr is always apparent; the whole world may wonder at it and admire, but the family is not quite so enthusiastic. In fact, it sees through the martyr.

Genuine unselfishness is a very beautiful quality; but it does not parade itself for the world's approbation.

It is content to do good without being prated for doing so.

The family martyr wears her halo with much satisfaction and self-consciousness.

The family martyr does not win the family's love, because she makes them feel that they are constantly in her debt.

Don't be a family martyr; be an unselfish one if you like, but don't force others to give up being unselfish also.

In most families all the members are willing to do their share of unselfish acts but forget you are far more selfish than they when you insist on sacrificing yourself and taking all the credit of being unselfish.

Attractive Recipes for Home Cookery

FRICASSEED POTATOES

PLACE a small onion sliced in a sauce pan. Add to it a dessert spoonful of butter, a dash of paprika, and salt, and fried a light brown. The potatoes cut in small squares are poured into the saucepan and covered with boiling water. When the water has boiled away the potatoes are soft and tender and tinted a golden red from the paprika and butter. They are excellent

BAKED SPARERIB WITH APPLES

Buy a small piece of spareribs, as lean as possible, split through the centre, and, after washing, cut into small pieces. Fit a piece sheet one-half inch thick, and cut twice of apple in each piece, forming little "rolls." Season with salt and pepper and butter, and lay them over the meat in the roasting pan sprinkle a little flour over them. After they are browned well, add a half cup of water and baste often. Roast until well done.

CHICKEN SHORTCAKE

Make a soft dough, using two cups of flour, two heaping tablespoons butter, one-half teaspoon of salt, two rounding teaspoons of baking powder, milk enough to make a soft dough. Roll out into a sheet one-half inch thick, and cut twice as many rounds as you need shortcakes. Butter these rounds and fold together in pairs. Bake in a quick oven. Mix one pint of cold chopped chicken, one-fourth cup chopped mushrooms, and one pint of rich sauce made of one cup of chicken stock, one cup of cream, one tablespoonful of butter, one tablespoon of flour, one-half of a teaspoon of salt and one egg. When ready to serve, split the short cakes apart, cover the lower half with chicken mixture, replace upper half, and cover with chicken. Decorate with a sprig of parsley and serve at once.

Soliloquy of a Housemaid

By FANNY FERN.

O, dear, dear! Wonder if my mistress ever thinks I am made of flesh and blood? Five times within half an hour, I have trotted upstairs, to hand her things that were only four feet away from her rocking chair.

Then, there's her son, Mr. George—it does seem to me that a great able-bodied man like his needn't call a poor, tired woman up four flights of stairs to ask "what's the time?"

Helpful! It's "Sally do this," and "Sally do that," till I wish I never had been baptized at all; and I might as well go farther back, while I am about it, and wish I had never been born.

Now, instead of ordering me round as like a dray horse, if they would only look up pleasantly like, now and then, or ask me how my "rheumatic" did, or say "good morning, Sally," or show some sort of interest in a fellow creature, I could keep up a full day's work for them.

No Time of Her Own

A kind word would ease the wheels of my treadmill amazingly and wouldn't cost THEM anything, either.

Look at my clothes, all of sizes and sevens. I don't get a minute to sew on a string or button, except at night. And then I'm so sleepy it is as much as ever I can find me way to bed; and what a bed it is to be sure!

Why, even the pigs are now and then allowed clean straw for sleep on.

And, as to feeding—the less said about them the better. My old cloak serves for a blanket, and the sheets are so fain as a spider's web.

Well, well, one wouldn't think it, to see all the fine, glittering things down in the dressing room.

Sunday's Extra Work

Master's span of horses, and Miss Clara's diamond earrings, and mistress' rich dresses. I TRY to think it is all right, but it is no use.

And then Sunday—"day of rest" I believe they call it.

Humph! More cooking to be done—more company waiting on—more than on any other day in the week.

If I am a Christian, I am not hated how to take care of it, for many a long day.

Wonder if I am to be one of those spiritualists to put me for THAT? If I lose it? It is a queer idea to my mind.

Land of Goshen! I ain't sure I've got a mind either; I'm half ripe!

DARWIN rang the bell and faced his prisoner once more with bitter sarcasm.

"To amuse yourself during your long wait of two hours," he said, "I presume you rang the bell and ordered a bottle of champagne—and two glasses!"

"No," replied Emerson, in the same low, calm tone. There was a moment's pause and then with an effort Darwin demanded:

"Well—who did?"

"Mr. Darwin," said Emerson gravely, "send those people away and I'll—I'll tell the whole truth."

At that moment Jane entered.

"Jane, who ordered that?"

"I don't know, sir," replied the servant. Darwin turned grimly to the young man

"I want witnesses to your statement," he said. Emerson made an eager gesture.

"I'll put it in writing later," he declared. The other hesitated a moment and then dismissed the detectives and the servant with a wave of the hand.

"Well, Sir, I'm Waiting"

"Wait downstairs," he commanded. "Don't go to bed, Jane! I want to see you."

"Yes, sir."

He waited until the sound of the footsteps had died away in the hall outside and then:

"Well, sir, I'm waiting!"

"Mr. Darwin, I know what is in your mind in regard to my visit here," said the young man, soberly. "I know what has always been in your mind in regard to me. But, man to man, before God, you are wrong in both instances!"

"Never mind what you suspect I think!" snapped Darwin. "Let us have the facts. What was your object in coming here to-night?"

"I came to steal," replied Emerson, simply.

"Oh! So robbery was your motive?" sneered the other, with a sardonic, ugly laugh.

"Yes. Let me explain——"

"And instead of avoiding detection and leaving the house as you had planned," and he laughed again. Emerson nodded. "You made a certain sort of silence him."

"Yes but——" he began again.

"Would you have me think I'm a court of law?" Darwin interrupted.

"You Love My Wife!"

"Yes!" was the firm reply.

"Then you're a bigger fool than I thought you were, and I married at your business success!" declared the older man with withering contempt. "Emerson, I'm about to be frank and indelicate, but—I want the truth! I hate evil and evildoers—I hate them! You love my wife! You—you dare to tell me!" as Emerson made a quick motion of protest.

"I—I resect and admire her," began the young man.

"She would have married you if your ore for money hadn't overshadowed your ove for her!" interrupted the husband bitterly. "But that was some time ago. ow attraction has changed. You have made money. You can rest on ureis—which means that you can indulge our passion! You loved her and she—" he uttered slightly—"she loved you—and you are here, in my house—after midnight! The deduction is inevitable! You——"

"Don't dare say it!" blazed Emerson, drancing a step threatingly. "It's a lie! She doesn't love me!"

"She loved you. She told me so years ago in charming outburst of schoolgirl confidence—told me the whole story!"

"Which you are blackguard enough to betray!" cried Emerson, furiously.

"Leave Your Wife's Name Out"

"You came to rob the house—yes!" went on Darwin, in bitter anger. "And you have robbed it! My wife is——"

"Leave her name out of this!" commanded Emerson, with fury. "By God! if you mention it again I'll——" he half started forward with clenched fists and restrained himself with an effort. "I want to tell you the truth, if you will let me. I won't give me a chance. You're so anxious to fasten guilt on that innocent woman. You live in an atmosphere of suspicion! Your trade is to convict and you see nothing but guilt all around you! I told you I came here to steal and——"

"And I dismiss your explanation as absurd and trivial! Come, try again!"

Emerson paused until he had secured a good hold on his temper.

"First of all," he said slowly, "I want you to give me your—your word of honor as a man—(though I've precious little faith in it)—that you will not use any of the facts I may give you as evidence against us—myself or my associates in the Federal Courts."

"Oh, yes—granted!"

"I promise. Go on!" said Darwin.

Emerson started as he heard a slight noise at the door.

"Let's have a witness to that. Here's one right here!" he said, stepping quickly to the door and calling Detective Hicks. Hicks was there, note-book in hand.

"While you are taking notes," continued Emerson, calmly, "I want you to note the fact that Mr. Darwin promises not to use any of the statements I am about to make to him as evidence in the case of the United States against the Emerson Banking Company."

Hicks looked questioningly at the prosecutor who nodded.

"Note that!" he ordered, briefly. The detective withdrew.

"And keep away from that door," added Emerson, as the officer closed it behind him.

"Cowper's Deal Is Known"

Darwin sat down at his table and Emerson drew up a chair within a few feet of him so he could talk in an undertone.

"Well?" questioned the former impatiently.

"The deal you made with George Cowper is known to us," said the young man.

"Known!" exclaimed the prosecutor, with a lift of the eyebrows.

"You had an appointment with him this evening at 8 o'clock."

"Well?"

"He kept the appointment. The evidence he was to supply you with—for which you bribed him with promises of personal immunity—was left here by him, according to promise, at 8 o'clock."

"Well?"

"I found it out about 10 o'clock. By a little after 11 I was hiding in the house."

Darwin put his hand up behind his ear and pretended not to hear clearly.

"Speak a little louder, please." he requested.

"No, this is for your ear alone," was the calm reply.

"Those men know all about you and your affairs. The moment you came in the house they telephoned for Instructions."

"Yes, but they don't know that I came here to get the notes that George Cowper left here for you," retorted Emerson.

"Where Are the Notes?"

"You acknowledge that these notes will convict you and your associates?" demanded the other. Emerson nodded.

"I acknowledge that they will convict me," he replied, quietly. "My associates are entirely ignorant of the work to which their signatures were put."

"Where are the notes?"

For the first time since Darwin had entered the room the strong man looked disconcerted.

"I don't know—I haven't them"—he began, hesitatingly. "Ah—Mrs. Darwin"—

"Ah, yes," interrupted Darwin, bitterly. "Let's come to that. What part—did she play in this—this affair?"

"She found me here," replied Emerson in a low voice, "in the act of searching among your papers."

"Oh!"

"She refused to allow me to take away what I had come for. I argued—I pleaded—I threatened to use force; but it was useless. she was firm in her fidelity to your interests."

"Firm in her fidelity to my interests!" sneered the other. "A nice, high-sounding phrase! And after that—I mean—When did the champagne episode come in?"

"I was overcome with a sort of vertigo—could hardly stand up," said Emerson, hesitantly. "I asked for some stimulant."

"And, instead of handing a burglar over to the police, she regaled him with champagne! Quite so—quite so!" nodded Darwin with biting irony. "She always was most sympathetic. How do you propose to prove this parade of innocence?"

"Mr. Darwin will tell you the truth," repeated the young man, calmly.

"Will it be true you expect me to suppress the important fact that you came here to steal documentary evidence that would be damaging to yourself and your partners?"

"I have your promise," replied Emerson, looking steadily into the eyes.

"Yes, you have my promise"—he hesitated and muttered: "It's a d——d pretty story if it's true—if it's a true." And he looked up at Emerson suddenly with:

"It takes two to make a love affair. And there are two sides to every story. I'm prepared to the empty glass and the shattered fragments on the table."

"I broke one," Emerson promptly explained. The promptness of this explanation and the tone in which it was delivered he convinced Darwin for the moment. He was silent a few seconds, and at last he said:

"If she corroborates the story in all its essential details—I may be disposed to accept. But," he added, grimly, "I've a cursed inner conviction that you're lying! You're a picturesque sort of a scoundrel. Just the sort of a fellow that has no conception about breaking up a home—and boasting of it afterward!"

Emerson bore these terrible insults with barely a wince. He was fighting to save the honor of the woman that he loved.

"The truth of my story is easily proven," he said quietly. "Cowper will tell you that he left the notes here—the servant can tell you. Darwin saw me try to steal them——"

"She Loves My Sister"

"Thanks!" interrupted the prosecutor, grimly. "I know how to piece it together myself. The other side of the picture is also convincing—and far more circumstantial! Your early association—your love for each other—her anger at my inviting Lakin this evening—I can easily what to think—and how to act!"

As he started over to touch the bell-button, Emerson stopped him with a gesture.

"Darwin, when you try a case in court you ask the jurop if he has a preconceived opinion of the prisoner's guilt," he said, gravely.

"Yes."

"And if the juror," continued the young man, "says he has, you ask him if he can clear his mind of that suspicion."

"Yes."

"If he says he cannot, you reject him as incompetent."

"Well?"

"I ask you if you can clear your mind of the preconceived opinion you have formed as to our guilt?" concluded Emerson.

"I am the judge in this case," replied the banker.

"Nevertheless," insisted the young man earnestly, "I ask you to rid your mind of my guilt, unholy suspicions!"

"Unholy!" repeated Darwin with a grim laugh. "The devil quotes scriptures! You will want downstairs till I send for you!" He rang the servant's bell and opened the door and called Hicks. When the officer appeared he said:

"Hicks, Mr. Emerson will wait down stairs till I have decided just what I am going to do with him."

"Yes, sir."

Here! Your embarrassment over the dowsy growth on your arms will be of short duration if you will use a little powdered delation. Get from the druggist an ounce of powdered delatone, mix with a little milk enough water to make a paste. Then thickly on offending hair and in two minutes you or three minutes, then remove and wash the skin carefully. While entirely free from irritation, it never fails, and seldom is a second application necessary. If you desire results, be careful to get the pure delatone.

Mrs. Pat: Cold weather should not be an excuse for neglecting the hair and scalp. The reason you always catch cold after a shampoo is because the natural oils are stripped from the pores and robs the hair follicles of their only protection. The consequence is that the hair becomes dry and harsh and the scalp becomes irritated and difficult to manage. Use a good ointment for shampooing once a week for a while, you can soon restore this condition and avoid future colds after washing the head. A teaspoonful of cuticura ointment is all required for a shampoo, and it will be found sufficient for several shampoos. Simply rub it well into the scalp, then wash with cuticura soap and water. This will remove dust and dandruff, and stimulate the hair follicles to healthy action, and the hair will become long, glossy and abundant and fluffy.

X. Y. Z.: Your husband has a right to object to your using greasy creams. Such treatment will not overcome an oily complexion, but if you prepare the following inexpensive massage cream daily your troubles will soon end: Get an ounce of ammonia from your druggist and dissolve in half pint of water, add two teaspoonfuls glycerine, stir well and let stand a few hours. After shaving at night rub this mixture well into the face, neck and arms, then wash off with clear water. Use enough of the mixture to make a good lather and rub in well. Rinse off with clear water. Use no soap. This will remove the dead skin, whiten and soften the skin and prevent wrinkles.

Corn H.: Lack of fresh air and sufficient exercise makes sluggish blood, deranges the liver and is responsible for the pimply condition of your face and body. Get a bottle of it will throw off impurities, regulate the liver and make your complexion will clear and become soft and rosy. Here is a good recipe: Get an ounce of sarsaparilla from the drug store and dissolve in half pint alcohol, add one ounce of compound syrup, but water to make a full quart. A tablespoonful of this compound in a glass of water will help your health and energy and bring back the color of health to the cheeks.

Mrs. D.: You ask for a harmless face reducer. The only reliable one I know is the parsley recipe, which is inexpensive and easily made. Get from the druggist an ounce of parsnits and dissolve in 1½ pints hot water. Drink a wineglassful before each meal, and if these simple directions are followed you will soon begin to notice your normal weight. The pleasant feature of this treatment is you do not have to starve yourself or indulge in violent exercise to obtain desired results.

Lois: At your age your eyes should have their youthful sparkle, but if you need artificial the same as your body. Here is an old and reliable formula for an eye wash which is inexpensive: Dissolve an ounce of crystos in a pint of hot water. One or two drops in each eye removes foreign particles, relieves all soreness and smarting and reduces inflammation. It is also good for tired, weary eyes, and makes them clear and sparkling. You can get crystos in any drug store.

R. F. D.: It is foolish for you to pay a fancy price for a quinine hair tonic when you can make a good one at home at trifling cost. If you will get an ounce of quinine from the druggist and dissolve it in one half pint alcohol, then add water to make a pint, you will have as good hair tonic as money can buy. Rubbing a little well into the hair roots each night tones and strengthens the scalp and hair and keeps it in healthy condition. You will not be troubled with dandruff or falling hair if you use this tonic, and the hair will grow long, abundant and glossy.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies have done for me. For two years I suffered. The doctors said I had tumors, and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and to-day I am a healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. Your Liver Pills have no equal as a cathartic. Actions speak louder than words, and this is strong proof of what your medicines have done for me can get it from any druggist as they are well known. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Another Operation Avoided.

New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. LILY FEYROUX, 1111 Kerlerec St., New Orleans, La.

The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

Health and Beauty Advice

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

AERO ICE BOAT SHOW FEATURE

Motor boating has for some years been a pastime indulged in by those who love fast boats and engines, but motor boating on the ice is something new and the aero ice boat on exhibition at the big Boston Motor Boat Show in the Mechanics building is attracting great attention.

The boat was built in Beverly by the Eastern Motor Sales Company after the plans by Harold Brown of New York. In its trial runs it developed a speed of from 60 to 70 miles an hour, and is said to be able to do even better.

The boat is built on a framework like that of an aeroplane without the planes. It carries a 50-inch propeller forward and just behind this the two main runners. Just aft of the runner beams is the engine which develops 25 horse power and sends the propeller at the rate of 800 revolutions a minute.

Nearing the stern of the strange craft is the steering body for the operator. It is fitted out with the regulation windshield and steering wheel, the engine control being fitted to the wheel.

Many Boat Surprises.

On the stern, just above the steering runner, is a large twelve-gallon tank for gasoline. One peculiarity of this machine is the runners. Instead of the steel being merely set into the wooden frame, the wood is set into the runner and riveted in place edge, and because of the woodwork being fitted into steels they cannot come off or skid.

This is but one of the many skiffs that one may see at the show, but as the show full of surprises, boats one has never dreamed of are exhibited, and could the crews of some old Norse Viking ship visit the show they would probably feel the hull at the improvement made in naval architecture and mechanics, since by means of oars and rough seas they pushed their galleys on their trips of conquest.

Another famous boat that is being exhibited at the show is the Brer Fox, the speed launch that covered the distance of 1,554 miles from Cincinnati to New Orleans in a total elapsed time of 30 hours, 25 minutes and 58 seconds, beating all previous records for speed and long distance endurance races.

Feat of the Brer.

On five days the Brer Fox made runs of over 192 miles, but the longest non-stop run was from Greenville, Miss., to Vicksburg, a distance of 154½ miles in four hours, twenty-seven minutes and six seconds, roughly better than twenty miles an hour.

A great deal of interest is being taken by boat builders in the Brer Fox, for it was believed its record would never be beaten with any marketable boat while pine could stand such use, but the new Sterling motor would run fifty hours under the most adverse conditions and was made under.

This year's motor boat show is the best ever held in Boston. There are 167 exhibits, the largest boat shown outside of the Brer Fox, being a handsome 40-foot semi-cruising launch. The boat is fitted out with wide lights, automatic reverse devices and in fact everything that would go to making cruising in a motor boat as staying at home.

The smallest boat, which besides the 50-foot cruiser looks almost like a fly to an eagle, is a 14 foot, one-cylinder runabout. Yet despite the difference in size, the smaller boat affords as much attention as does her big sister.

Illustrated Lecture.

One of the features of the show, and in itself worth more than the price of admission, is the lecture each afternoon and evening by Clarence Manning Fait, who is known as the Laureate of Gloucester fish. Fait talks colorfully and interestingly on thirty different subjects connected with the fishing industry, the story of Gloucester.

The life of the fisherman, the hardships endured by him, the vessel he sails in, are all covered and told in a most graphic and interesting talks. Then he tells of the whaling days of the Nantucket men, the life of those on shore who help make the fishing industry of Gloucester the most profitable in the city. During his lectures Fait reads the Ode to the Gloucester fisherman.

There are probably few of the visitors who they had been left by a member of the household, for whom they had been described as the "Lorelei of the Lowery," lived three years, quickly caused the death of the child. He was the son of Thomas Lowery.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STOCKS STRONG, SHOW ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Continued buying of Northern Pacific, which sent the price of that stock up to 122¾, and Great Northern preferred, which sold at 128¾, caused a strong tone to prevail through out the stock market today, and as a result the general list moved up sustained the day.

Reading moved up fractionally to 157¾, while similar gains were scored in St. Paul, Union Pacific and New York Central, but the Southern Pacific was exceptionally strong. The Erie stocks continued to display strength, the common moving up to 30¾. General Electric raised strong and active, advancing half a point to 154. Virginia, carolina and Agricultural Chemical, which were the features of the low priced industrials all during yesterday's trading, continued strong and moved up slightly. The copper stocks were strong and active, Amalgamated moving up to 69¾, and Utah held active throughout around 70¾, while the preferred moved up fractionally to 116¾.

American tobacco were heavy in London, shading off fractionally. Copper stocks were irregular and fractionally lower. Trading on the curb was moderately active.

STERLING FARM FIRE CAUSES $5,000 LOSS

WORCESTER, Jan. 31.—The farm houses and barns on Valley Hill, Sterling, owned by Fred Davis and George Hughes, were destroyed by fire early today, entailing a loss of $5,000. The houses were unoccupied, but the barns were filled with hay and farm machinery. No assistance could be given by Sterling firemen, as the fire was two and one-half miles from the nearest fire station.

PASTOR PROVIDES SPOONING PARLOR

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 30.—A big club parlor, with easy chairs and cozy corners, advantageous shadows, a gas log and other features for the accents with which the Rev. J. B. Toomey, pastor of the Fountain Park Congregational Church, will stimulate social activities among the young folk of his congregation.

The club will be in the basement of the church and there will be no chaperones. "The young people of my congregation are presumed to conduct themselves properly," said Dr. Toomey. "Love making is natural and proper."

KANSAS FAVORS FAIR FOR SAN FRANCISCO

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 31.—Both branches of the Kansas Legislature to-day adopted resolutions endorsing San Francisco as the place for holding the Panama Exposition, in 1915.

TRENTON, Jan. 31.—Assemblyman Thomas M. Donnelly, of Hudson county, to-day introduced in the Legislature a resolution requesting the New Jersey delegation in Congress to vote and exert all its influence in favor of San Francisco as the Panama fair site. The resolution will undoubtedly pass.

"U. S. Minister Bedloe" at the Park Entertains Large Audience.

By NICHOLAS P. YOUNG.

At any rate George Ade is a humorist after your own heart. If he hadn't been crowded to the collar with reputation, you wouldn't have expected so much of "U. S. Minister Bedloe," and the evening at the Park Theatre would have passed into one long smile. In which the doubtful quality of the play would have been blissfully forgotten.

In the case of "U. S. Minister Bedloe" Mr. Ade contributed unostrovertible evidence that great lines do not always make good plays, although it never would have been suspected last evening—taking the broad view of the audience as a gauge—that the author of comedy was not the brightest gem of his collection. There was no mistaking Mr. Ade's quaint humor, his good-natured satire or his adroit character drawing—all those were there, but always moving on thin ice.

Scattering Good Cheer.

Not that "U. S. Minister Bedloe" is uninteresting, for it is rather attractive on the whole, with William H. Crane scattering in old familiar fashion—wading knee deep in sturdy Americanism to the tune of his screaming magic. His time Mr. Crane, thanks to Mr. Ade, played the kind of a man you might really find outside of volume of fiction—the kind of a man willing to serve his country because it carried a good job and a title, to say nothing of the salary.

And while Mr. Crane stirred the contents of the revolutionary pot in Caribay, he fed you on the sharp wit and homespun philosophy that are always fresh and delicious when dropped from the Ade pen.

Planting revolutions in Central America, however, is no new jog for zealous playwrights with nervous typewriters and willie Mr. Ade's little tactful turning was an astonishing addition to dramatic literature. It deliberately scattered good cheer all through the story.

Mr. Crane, who has advised the world that he will never again be serious, kept his word. From the moment the curtain went up and exposed him as a primary school statesman in Springneld, to the hour of his triumph in rough, but effective, diplomacy he carried the big audience resting serenely in smiles. He went through the play with a clean score in that respect.

Audience Is Kept Happy.

One of the real delights of the performance was Dan Collyer, whose Chester, secretary of legation, was treated most liberally by Mr. Ade. To the graduate of the sporting department in Bedloe's home city in Caribay Mr. Collyer was a boon half as serious as a field day of the high school cadets.

But too much is expected of Mr. Ade. The American nation has laughed with him so persistently since the days of his fables in slang that he is expected to produce the farcical hit at every twist of his pen. That is the fate of professional humorists who grow into public favor. The public is more nervous with writers of pathos.

In "U. S. Minister Bedloe" Mr. Ade holds as a humorist, which, after all, should be sufficient to those who like the drama merely as a means of amusement. To be an audience happy is no small task, yet Mr. Ade and Mr. Crane joined hands and delightfully performed that service last evening.

Hollis Street.

Before a brilliant and intellectual audience at the Hollis Street Theatre last night Mrs. Fiske repeated her success of three years ago with "Becky Sharp." Not notwithstanding the familiarity with the dramatized version of Thackeray's "Vanity Fair" the interest shown by the large audience attested to the thorough appreciation of the talented star and her most capable company.

Mrs. Fiske's portrayal of the title part needs no comment. It is one of the most celebrated of her dramatic career. The act which represents the Duchess of Richmond's ball on the eve of the battle of Waterloo was delightful. The pathos shown at her parting with her husband about to go into the battle of Waterloo, followed by Becky's instantaneous gayety as her husband leaves her sight, was given with such spirit by Mrs. Fiske that she was forced to respond to many curtain calls.

The acting of Leonard Shepherd as Steyne in the third act was admirable. Perhaps the most thrilling part of the entire performance came with Mrs. Fiske and Mr. Shepherd in the third act, when Rawdon Crawley discovers Steyne making love to his wife, and in the fright of the moment Becky lets fall the glass of champagne. The audience was brought to the highest pitch of enthusiasm over the splendid acting.

Robert V. Ferguson as Sir Pitt Crawley, and by the way the only member besides Mary Madden Yoke who was in the original cast, was most artistic.

Keith's.

When two baseball players like Christy Mathewson and "Chief" Myers of the New York Giants go on the stage and start doing stunts, especially when they have an accomplished entertainer like Miss May Tully assisting them, it's a hundred-to-one shot they make good. That's just what these three are doing at Keith's this week in a sketch called "Curves." It is distinctly a baseball skit, and the whole scheme is baseball, but it's good, and that pleases the fans.

The scene is laid just outside the clubhouse of the Polo grounds during the ninth inning of a game between the Giants and the Cubs. When the curtain rises the score is tied and either are sure to win. Soon Miss Tully is also there, and the two players are showing for her benefit some of the curves and scientific pitching that makes the baseball game a battle of wits(?).

The players retire, leaving Miss Tully to do some funny imitations of famous characters at a baseball game and then the sketch winds up in a funny burlesque of a well-known drama, with all three in the cast.

The second week of Billie Burke's Wild West gives Bostonians further time to see the rollicking bronco, flea and shoot'em up work with the lariat that would be hard to duplicate even in the wildest part of the West. Lieut. Pilsnplondia in new dress have returned and score heavily.

Mark Clark's dancing canines do not lose novelty that holds one's attention to the last, and a comedy bicycle wire act entitled "An Elopement by Wire" brings Woods and Woods much applause.

Castle Square.

John Craig and his players pleased a large audience at the Castle Square Theatre last evening in a revival of "Hamlet." Mr. Craig's admirers found in his sterling acting support of their faith in the showmanship of an English friend that Mr. Craig is America's best Prince of Denmark.

Scenically, the production left nothing to be desired. Recognition of this was given by the audience in applause as the curtain rose over some excellent setting.

Mr. Craig's Hamlet is a rather unique character, reserved and unemotional, but still with princely qualities. His Hamlet wins a fitful sympathy, but finally succumbs. The power of the actor is shown as he dashes forth Hamlet's innermost soul. He brings conviction that Hamlet is worthy of the love of Ophelia, and makes one feel a pang that the prince cannot succeed his father to the throne.

Miss Mary Young gave an exceptionally fine impersonation of Ophelia. She makes the character beautiful both in the soul and in the flesh. Her acting wins the sympathy of the audience. The mad scene was particularly well acted.

Walter Walker as Polonius, George Hassell as the Ghost and Al Roberts as the First Gravedigger, were excellent. Robert Hounie, with the company for the first time, played Laertes and scored. Miss Florence Shirley was Osric, and William Farlee, the stage director, was Claudius.

Grand Opera House.

Back into the untamed Western country galloped the drama at the Grand Opera House last evening, where Hal Reid's "At Cripple Creek" supplied the usual quota of thrilling incidents and exciting situations to the enjoyment of a large audience. Mr. Reid's drama is a typical play of the West, with all the rude characters that though the surface of that kind appeal. It was acted by a company well suited to the parts, and was staged in a fashion that left no room for complaint.

Howard Athenaeum.

It was a case of old favorites at the Howard Athenaeum yesterday, for "The Cherry Blossom Burlesquers" opened to audiences among those with their merry ways. Two performances gave the company big opportunities which, of course, were grasped with both hands. Then there was the additional bit of vaudeville features provided by Bert Leslie and Co., which created a dull person who couldn't gather a full measure of fun from the entertainment.

Orpheum Theatre.

The new program at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday was headed by Leslie Morosco and company, in a lively sketch called "The Other Woman." Then the Ferrari troupe of dancers furnished another sensation. There were a dozen other features, including a long list of motion pictures.

Columbia Theatre.

"The Kentucky Belles" furnished lively entertainment at the Columbia Theatre yesterday. There were two spirited burlesques and plenty of rapid fire vaudeville.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

"The Flying Dordeens" were the feature of the variety program at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday. There were new motion pictures.

Austin & Stone's.

The three-legged horse continues to draw crowds to Austin & Stone's Museum. Other curio hall and stage features are included in the daily programme.

Waldron's Casino.

"The Bowery Burlesquers" more than made good at Waldron's Casino yesterday. It was one of the brightest shows of the season and kept everybody in good humor.

Gaiety Theatre.

Al Reeves's "Beauty Show" supplied pulsating entertainment at the Gaiety Theatre yesterday. There was no doubt about the quality of the show and a score of good-looking girls made it good to look upon.

Hub Theatre.

Herbert's cat and dog circus was the big bit at the Hub Theatre yesterday, where the new week brought a complete change of programme in both vaudeville and pictures.

Scenic Temple.

The new program at the Scenic Temple yesterday was made up of vaudeville features that were new to Boston, and a list of attractive motion pictures.

Plays That Remain.

"The Balkan Princess" began its last week at the Shubert Theatre last evening. It is one of the season's hits.

"Madame X" loses none of its wonderful popularity as the week roll by, for there was another capacity audience at the Majestic last evening.

"The Rosary" began a new week at the Globe yesterday afternoon. Prosperity has been the rule for weeks.

"The Dollar Princess" remains at the Colonial where it has become one of the dancing successes of the year.

"The Follies of 1910" is more than holding its own at the Tremont, where a new week was begun last evening.

The final week of "The Maestro's Masterpiece" was begun at the Boston Theatre last evening. It is a mixture of opera and drama.

Coming Next Week.

John Drew will be at the Hollis in "Smith."

"The Road to Yesterday" will be Mr. Craig's offering at the Castle Square.

Julius Steger will be seen in "The Fascinating Widow" as will be at the Boston Theatre.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House.

Sam Bernard will bring "He Came From Milwaukee" to the Bowdoin theatre.

Amusement Notes.

The Burton Holmes travelogue at Tremont Temple next Friday evening is Senator Gilbert Hitchcock will be devoted Germany.

Alexander Light will carry Shakespeare to Jordan Hall for three nights, beginning March 8. His company will give "Hamlet," "The Merchant of Venice" and "Twelfth Night."

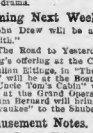
AT THE OLD HOWARD THIS WEEK

SHY



How long do you suppose you could stand on one foot in bare-foot dance? Not in bare-foot dance? Well, not after the first payday, that's a cinch.

The boys at Rock in the Howard this week to see the Cherry Blossom Burlesquers will be struck by one of their number—that's a new girl, Miss Shy, who performs some wonderful stunts on the slack wire, something doing from 1 till 2 at the Howard.

CHERRY BLOSSOM BURLESQUERS

Remember John Perry, the trampolonist who is with the Cherry Blossoms this week. He is to have a private old home week starting this before Perry Mayer's Blossoms. Among the Perry Mayer's Blossoms Minnie Gaylor has been with the Blossoms for a number of years, and is a favorite with the Howard patrons.

A crackerjack variety show that leads all the way.

TRINITY TO AID HOMELESS BOYS

Plans are being made by the Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann, rector of Trinity Church, to establish a new parish house which will be open to homeless young men. Announcement that the necessary fund had been obtained was made at a reception tendered by the Trinity Club to men of the parish.

Dr. Mann's "dream," as he called it, is for a parish house in which there shall be homelike rooms, open eight or nine months of the year, every evening in the week, to which the boys and young men who come to the city with letters to the rector of Trinity Church from their home churches or the boys who have been choir boys in the church, may come to meet their friends.

Government by the People in Oregon

Old Political Methods Receive a Setback in the Northwest.

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner

Now that the returns are all in, and the votes on the thirty-two referendum measures of last November duly counted and weighed, it is made clear to the whole country that Oregon knows its own mind and is qualified to lead the nation-wide movement for the restoration of self-government.

The story had traveled through the country, with much "acceleration" of opinion-making, that direct legislation in the Northwest was a failure. But not even the most brazen organ of the machine and the "system" has the effrontery to say that now. The campaign of falsehood has given place to a conspiracy of silence.

The people of Oregon rejected by a vote of nearly three to one a subtle scheme of the politicians for the abolishment of the referendum.

The election of November 8 established beyond all question the right of the people to name a United States Senator and compel the Legislature to elect the people's nominee.

Thirty-five thousand Republicans refused to support the Republican machine candidate for Senator, and thereby secured the election of a Democrat with no strings to his conscience.

The principle of genuine direct nominations, without the intervention of any party committee, was vindicated with a rush—the people declaring by an overwhelming majority against the half-breed kind of direct primaries advocated by many unthinking people.

This Oregon referendum of last November enacted a good employers' liability bill, made good roads possible by clearing away a jungle of legal difficulties and carried important reforms in judiciary procedure—allowing a three-fourths jury verdict in civil cases and instructing the higher courts not to reverse just judgments of lower courts on mere technical errors.

Finally, it extended the primary law to include the election by the people of delegates to national conventions on such terms that hereafter the rank and file of the voters in Oregon will name their own candidates for President of the United States.

The simple truth is that the old caucus and convention system of party government has received its death blow in the Northwest.

Oregon is pioneering the way to a fresh and modern application of those fundamental principles of self-government that ruled the early days of the Republic.

The School as a Town Meeting House

"Those who are opening our schoolhouses for the largest public service are simply reviving the ancient traditions of freedom."

So said Dr. Samuel Crothers of Cambridge, Mass., at the convention of the National Municipal League in Buffalo.

This convention of civic workers from the four quarters of the country gave a day's session to the discussion of the social uses of the American public school.

A dozen or more papers were read, all running to the general conclusion that the public school building offers the natural rallying ground for all the recreational, artistic, political and social influences that go to make up the public life of self-governing communities.

Samuel Crothers and Charles Zueblin traced the idea of the social centre through its historical antecedents, undertaking to show that the public school is destined to be to our modern American towns something not unlike the primitive gatherings of free men in ancient Greece and Rome and Palestine, or the German folkmote or the New England town meeting.

Henry C. Campbell, a Milwaukee newspaper man, argued for the use of the schoolhouse by non-partisan gatherings of citizens for public discussion. He held it "no exaggeration to say that in making the schoolhouse the forum of the people lies the chief hope of perpetuating the Republic and of perfecting its institutions."

Mr. Campbell was backed by Levi S. Richards, a Boston editor, who also came to the conclusion that "the public schoolhouse is the appropriate headquarters for non-partisan politics."

It was pointed out that the schoolhouse has many advantages over the saloon as a local centre of politics.

A Rochester health officer declared that the school furnishes the best possible basis of operations in the fight for the public health. And the president of the league suggested that the schoolhouse has possible uses as a popular art gallery.

The whole discussion was immensely significant as showing a complete unity of opinion among men who take serious thought about social problems—to the effect that the public school plant is underworked, and is capable of vastly expanded uses.

The convention seemed to be unanimous also on the point that American communities are in sore need of a public place to rally the people against special interests—and that the schoolhouse is the right place.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

LIKES DINGBAT SERIES

Editor AMERICAN:

I am a constant reader of the AMERICAN and enjoy many of its features, including the Mutt and Jeff pictures. It seems to me as though the Dingbat series are not getting as much outside popularity as they deserve. I wish to write you, therefore, that as for me, I think they are fine, and that Herriman is to be congratulated on his genius.

TRIALS OF WEDDED LIFE

Editor AMERICAN:

A man and woman keep their wedded life together till the end of their days, through all kinds of trouble and sorrow; being happy in each other's company, putting up with the little discomforts, being contented with what they have for the present time, with the hope and ambition of the future. This is the test of true love. Nobody ever meets their ideal. Some say they do, but it is not so; there is always something lacking. To be happy you must have a higher aim always in view; the moment you cease to have better ambitions, you are no longer contented. A little financial trouble and your wedded life is over? No! Most marriages do not come through propinquity—some do, but not the greater part.

RAISING OF THE DEAD

Editor AMERICAN:

No human being will ever rise from the grave before the Day of Resurrection. Christ arose from the dead to show his victory over sin and evil. Mrs. Eddy has done a great work, and with God nothing is impossible. Mrs. Eddy's spirit could be visible to the friends she loved so dearly while she was among them. The question is: will she so appear? Some people say the soul goes to heaven when one dies, but who knows if a soul goes up or down? God is the only One that has the power to raise the dead.

THE PACE THAT KILLS AS A FORM OF SUICIDE

Written for the Boston American

By Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner

PEOPLE are dropping down dead all around us. Something is to be said of the beauty of instantaneous death, notwithstanding the Prayer Book, "From sudden death, good Lord deliver us."

But the kind of sudden death that is so frequent at present is not something to be wished, still less prayed for. In fact, it is a way of "sloughing off this mortal coil" that is altogether against nature and ghastly, and is simply a violent snapping of the cords of life.

It is dying unnaturally, because of living unnaturally. It is a case of burning out the furnace because of keeping up too heavy and hot a fire.

Not Providence, but Another Form of Suicide

There is absolutely nothing to show for it but a precipitate and hideous jumping off at the end. It is not to be charged up to a "mysterious Providence." Providence has nothing to do with it any more than when a suicide takes arsenic or blows a bullet into his head. And, indeed, it is very much in the order of suicide.

There is no Providence about it, and nothing mysterious about it, either, any more than when a man undertakes to drive his horse fifteen miles an hour, and after the first five miles, the animal drops dead. In that case it is a simple matter of cruelty to animals. It is the same in this case, too, cruelty to animals, only in this instance the animal is a human animal, and a premature, precipitate and ghastly death is what he gets for it.

It ought to be considered disreputable to die in this way, for it comes as the result of a continued and deliberate burning of one's self up. It is the last end of a prolonged process of self-killing, and it is just as gross and wicked to kill one's self as it is to kill anybody else.

Does it pay? Is there any fun or profit in living a palpitating life and "going the pace that kills"? What is a man fifty or sixty years old thinking of when he runs up the elevated railroad stairs, two steps at a time, for the sake of catching a train that is only five minutes ahead of the train following?

Does It Pay to Play the Part of a Human Typhoon?

Why do people who were intended by their Creator to be sensible humans undertake to be typhoons with the result that they fall of being creditable typhoons and miss being, in the best sense of the term, successful humans? Does it pay?

I once said to an automobilist in Wales: "You must have a lot of enjoyment running your car through the midst of such superb scenery as there is about here." "Oh!" said he, "I have no time to look at the scenery; I am touring, and it is all I can do to run my car."

There are two kinds of insane people—insane people that are dangerous and are taken to the asylum, and insane people who are a menace only to themselves and who are allowed to run wild till they drop in their tracks and are gathered to their fathers.

It was stated here a while ago that when a workman has done for his employer all that he is under legal contract to do there usually remain to be discharged certain moral obligations not specified in the agreement. The principle was fairly set forth and fully illustrated.

The article, however, covered only half of the ground, for the principle involved is twofold in its action, and is as binding upon the employer in his relation to the employe as upon the employe in his relation to his employer.

Considerable of the uneasiness and bitterness experienced by the workman is due to the feeling that he has only a cash value in the estimate of the man to whom he is rendering service; that he is simply a thing and dealt with exclusively on that basis. He receives so much money for so much work, and there the relation stops, as in the case of a horse, which, when doing a certain amount of work, has fed to him a certain number of quarts of oats, and when he has more work to do is fed more oats.

Such a Relation Degrades the Workman.

Such a relation degrades the workman, for a man who is treated ignobly suffers in his self-respect and tends to become ignoble. The employer has not done all that he ought to do when he has done all that he engaged to do, for his workman is a human being over and above being a device for the turning out of marketable product.

So that when contract wages have been paid there is still a recognition due to the employe considered simply in his character as a man. As such it belongs to him to be paid according to the value of his services, not according to the law of supply and demand.

It is good business to pay $2 for $3 worth of work if it can be gotten for that, but it is bad morals. That that is the usual policy is the only thing that renders it reputable. The villainy of the majority ordinarily passes for integrity. An employe is a tool, but he is also a man.

A twofold obligation therefore rests upon every employer of labor; one is the obligation to abide by stipulated terms, the other is the obligation to do whatever else will conduce to the advantage of the employe, so far as lies reasonably within the power of the employer.

Mutuality of regard as between labor and capital is the only solution of the economic problem.

Small sands the mountain, moments make the year,
And trifles life.—YOUNG.

Thrift

By WEX JONES

JAMES DERRINGER was a guide in Wyoming. He led a happy and peaceful life lassoing mountain lions for morning picture men and escorting fat bankers on wild trips which took the party yards from civilization.

Ideal as such an existence must appear, Derringer was not satisfied. He longed to acquire fame, but could not think of how his ambition might be realized until one day he happened to come across an article on the fossils of Wyoming. He read of the justly celebrated three-toed horse which used to gambol over the vast plains. He read of the diplodocus and all the other funny cusses that once roamed carelessly across his part of the map. Some of the great lizards were about the size of a subway express train, and just about as healthy to meet head on.

Conscious of the great interest scientists displayed in the remains of these curious creatures, Derringer, in his simple way, reasoned that they would take even more interest in a living specimen, so he proceeded to make a gigantic lizard of leather inside of which he placed two bucking broncs, which he kept lively by placing a few hornets in the shell with them. He then led a large party of scientists to a rocky valley where the prehistoric monster had been anchored. At the signal his partner released the lizard and it rapidly faded from sight across the landscape.

The scientists were overcome with joy, and they are still searching for traces of the monster. As for Derringer, he is known the world over as the discoverer of the only living Dipplerdocus.

A Gloucester fisherman realized that much money could be made by any one who could solve the great problem of distribution. For months he pondered over the matter and at last hit upon the plan which has made him king of the fish trade.

First he constructed small canals to all the important cities. These canals were just wide enough to allow the passage of a halibut or cod, but not wide enough to permit the fish to turn around. Salt water fresh from the Atlantic was poured into the canals from siphons every morning.

Then the live fish, as they arrived in Gloucester, were put in the canals and chased along to New York or Chicago, as the demand required, by large dog-fish muzzled and trained for the purpose. At night the dogfish would return under their own power.

Even a small garden may be used to supply the family with vegetables and to bring in a steady income as well.

J. A. owned a house in Dedham. He had a plot of ground 7 feet by 22. This was rather small for a truck farmer, but J. A. determined upon a skyscraper garden. His plot is now forty stories high, and on each floor—if it may be so called—is oranges and strawberries to potatoes and cantelopes.

A little ingenuity is all that is required in such a case.

Sometimes the saving habit is carried too far. A young man, for instance, resolved to place in the bank every coin or bill he picked up in the street. After a time he found the system very slow and took to picking up bills in ills and other places. He now has free board and lodging, but little opportunity to increase his bank acount.

A country boy desiring funds to complete his education took a correspondence course in mechanics and began to manufacture locomotives at home, sending out the completed work in neat cartons. He now supplies his engines to most of the big railroads. His example is worth following by those fond of light home work.
